250,000 GREEKS GIVE UP; KING, AIDES FLEE ATHENS

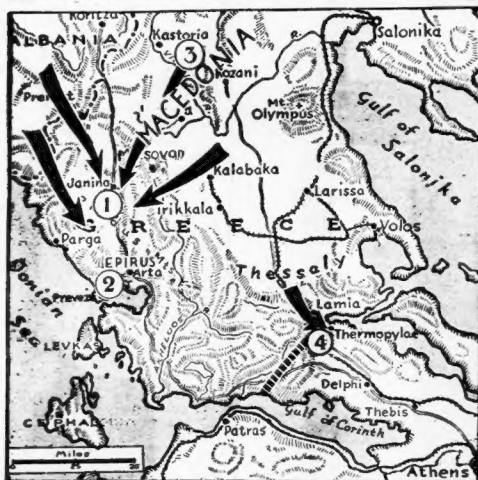

By the Associated Press

Greece's army of Epirus surrendered today, King George II fled Athens with his government to the Isle of Crete, and Berlin reported that Hitler's blitzkrieg armies had "annihilated" the British rearguard at Thermopylae and swept on through the pass.

Thus, in 18 days of violent assault, the Battle of the Balkans appeared to have all but ended in an Allied debacle.

Nazi quarters in Berlin said at least 250,000 Greek troops capitulated unconditionally, caught in an Axis trap in their retreat from Albania.

The Germans said Nazi panzer columns plunging through historic Thermopylae Pass, 100 miles from Athens, were relentlessly pursuing the British Expeditionary Forces in retreat toward the Hellenic capital.

SURRENDER—Caught in a trap as Italian legions and German forces swept down the Ionian coast and through Janina (1), Greece's northwestern army surrendered today . . . and Axis warriors took over the Epirus (2) and Macedonia (3) sections of Greece. Germans reportedly smashed through Thermopylae and the new British-Greek defense line (4) in the southeast in their push to Athens.

With German Stuka dive-bombers reported to have destroyed seven ships totaling 37,000 tons and damaged 12 others in Greek waters within the past 24 hours, Berlin spokesmen expressed doubt that few B. E. F. soldiers in Greece would ever see home again.

"The ships attacked were chiefly transports which had aboard units of British troops fleeing from Greece," Hitler's high command said.

"Only God and the weather can save the British, a Nazi official asserted.

"Our scouts are watching every bay and harbor in Greece. If the weather becomes so bad that visibility is very poor, some ships may escape temporarily, but we will get them later."

BRITISH STILL FIGHTING

Despite the reported Nazi break through the pass of Thermopylae and the collapse of Greek armies in the northwest, the London radio declared that British-Greek forces were still fighting stubbornly and holding their lines unbroken in "new positions."

Mussolini's high command announced that the Greek armies in Epirus and western Macedonia—previously estimated in Fascist press dispatches at 150,000 men—laid down their arms at 9:34 p. m. last night after three high-ranking Greek officers appeared under a flag of truce and asked for terms.

Unconditional surrender.

In Athens, King George declared bitterly that the Greek troops had "signed an armistice without our knowing it" and the surrender "in no way binds the free will of the nation."

The Grecian monarch said that "under the hard destinies of war" he was moving with his government to Crete—75 miles off the southeast tip of Greece—where "we shall

'War Not Over'; Greek King Issues Appeal to Nation

In announcing the abandonment of Athens and the determination of Greece to continue its fight against the Axis powers, King George II made the following statement, according to the Associated Press.

"The hard destinies of war compel us to get away from Athens together with the Crown Prince and lawful government of the country, and to transfer the capital of the country to Crete, whence we shall be able to continue the fight which is the will of the nation and the duty of safeguarding the independence and integrity imposed upon us and undertaken after unprovoked aggressions of which we have been the object by two empires."

"Our will, the will of the government and of the Greek people having been manifested in various ways so far mean resistance to the end on the part of Greek troops, which, despite the unequal fight, particularly after the German invasion, have stubbornly fought beside the English allies who rushed help to us and are still fighting on Greek territory for the sake of the right cause."

"Our troops, exhausted from the hard and victorious war which they had been waging for six months against a much stronger enemy and having written the most glorious pages of our military history, continued the fight against the Germans with inconceivable heroism."

"We do not yet know in what conditions exactly on the part of Epirus has been found and signed an armistice with the enemy without our knowing it."

"This act in no way binds the free will of the nation, the king, and the government, which consists of a continuation of the struggle with all remaining forces with a view to securing the supreme national interests."

"Being compelled to proceed to Crete, I do it only in order that freely and from Greek territory we may be able to continue to fight against the invaders until the final victory which will crown full the great sacrifices of the nation.

"Do not lose your courage, Greeks, even during this painful moment of our history. We shall always be among you."

"The right of our struggle and God will help us to secure by all means final victory in spite of the trials, pains and dangers which we shall go through in the meantime."

"Remain faithful to the idea of a united and undivided, free country. Intensely your will, oppose Greek pride to enemy force and enemy temptations. Have courage—good days will come again. Long live the nation."

20 U. S. TORPEDO BOATS ON WAY TO BRITAIN

WASHINGTON, April 23 (AP)—Secretary Knox said today that about 20 fast naval motor torpedo boats were ready for delivery to Great Britain as a part of the lend-lease program, and possibly were on the way now.

Churchill Has Talk With King

LONDON, April 23 (AP)—King George received Prime Minister Churchill in audience today at Buckingham Palace and it was understood Churchill gave the sovereign a detailed report on the latest developments of the increasingly critical war situation.

Knox said the boats, capable of speeds of more than a mile a minute, were to be shipped across, rather than undertaking the transatlantic trip under their own power.

The Navy had 28 available, Knox said, and the British were supplied from these. Other "mosquito" craft, mostly of a type 70 feet long and able to speed 70 or more miles an hour are under construction.

Knox told the press conference also that the Navy was negotiating with Canada for construction in Canada of a number of warships, probably of the new British Corvette type, such as are used to escort convoys.

PLANE OVER DUBLIN

DUBLIN, April 23 (AP)—An unidentified plane flew over Dublin at 9:15 a. m. today and was fired upon by ground defenses, the information bureau of the government announced.

RAF Gets More U. S. Planes

LONDON, April 23 (AP)—Lord Beaverbrook, British minister of aircraft production, told the House of Lords today that "nearly 1000 assembled American and Canadian aircraft have been handed over to the RAF."

Beaverbrook said that "up to this moment we have only lost one aircraft on the ferry service between America and this country."

Beaverbrook said the British admiralty had received "within the last few days 95 aircraft by sea, 355 tons of airplane parts and 326 engines."

The "flow of aircraft from America is increasing rapidly," Beaverbrook declared.

"I am prepared to say with authority that they are fine machines and that they are ready to fly and fight."

THE WEATHER

OFFICIAL U. S. WEATHER

BUREAU REPORT

LOCAL Mostly cloudy and warmer tonight; lowest temperature tonight about 48 degrees; Thursday mostly cloudy, occasional light rain; not much change in temperature; gentle southerly winds tonight and Thursday.

MAINE, NEW HAMPSHIRE AND VERMONT: Considerable cloudiness and warmer tonight; lowest temperature tonight about 48 degrees; not much change in temperature.

CONNECTICUT AND RHODE ISLAND: Mostly cloudy, warmer tonight; Thursday cloudy with occasional light rain, not much change in temperature.

GENERAL CONDITIONS

A high pressure center is over New England tonight, and light variable winds accompany mostly clear skies today with some temperatures to rise several degrees higher than yesterday. It was cool early this morning, and sub-freezing temperatures were reported at most points in the interior, but the mercury was rising rapidly by 7 o'clock, except along the immediate coast. A sea breeze developing along the coast in the late forenoon will prevent continued warming in that section. A few pressure systems moving eastward across the upper Great Lakes region is causing light to moderate precipitation in that area and will cause increasing cloudiness today in the north portion of southern New England, and light showers are likely to follow in extreme northern Maine tonight.

Taft Now Favors Price Control Board

WASHINGTON, April 23 (AP)—Sen. Taft (R. of Ohio) proposed today that Congress create a price control board with authority to regulate the consumer's price of such basic commodities as food, coal and steel.

Supertax on Lower Incomes Faces Fight

WASHINGTON, April 23 (AP)—The first evidence appeared today of developing opposition to the Treasury's drastic plan for collecting from two to six times as much income taxes from taxpayers in the low and middle brackets.

FLIED FLAMES—Roused from their slumber as flames raged in two wool storage buildings nearby, Margaret, Frances, Mary and Lillian Lynch were forced to flee their West Second st., South Boston, home early today.

30 FAMILIES FLEE NEW SO. BOSTON WOOL FIRE

Thirty families fled their homes in West Second st., South Boston, early today as flames raged through two wool storage buildings damaged a week ago by a five-alarm fire.

Part of a program to raise $3,600,000,000 in new federal revenue, the Treasury proposal would impose a schedule of new and higher surtaxes on everyone who pays a penny of income tax.

The plan, if adopted, would have the effect of making the tax rate on the lowest incomes 16.5 per cent. The present basic rate for the lowest bracket is 4 per cent, but taxpayers must add 10 per cent to their payments as a special defense levy. The higher rates would yield an estimated $1,517,100,000 of the new revenues sought. Other levies would produce the remainder.

In normal times, surtaxes are something that cause no concern to income taxpayers in the lower brackets. At present an individual must have a taxable income of more than $4000 before he has to pay a surtax. If the Treasury program is adopted, however, the surtax and the basic tax would apply simultaneously—to the very first dollar of taxable income.

INCLUDE SUPERTAX

Both the current and the proposed income rates include the 10 per cent defense surtax—or tax-on-a-tax—imposed by Congress last year.

The treasury surtax schedule, it was reported authoritatively, already has encountered opposition in the staff of the joint congressional committee on internal revenue taxation, at least as far as some details go.

This also was said to be the case with some members of the House ways and means committee, which will do the actual drafting of the big new tax bill.

After the treasury program was submitted and discussed at the committee's closed meetings Monday and yesterday, several committee members hinted that they were not enthusiastic about some of the proposed surtax rates, especially those applying to the lower income classes. They declined to comment for publication on the treasury plan until it is announced officially by Secretary Morgenthau at public hearings, starting tomorrow.

In the lower brackets, this is what the surtax-plus-present tax plan would mean in two hypothetical cases.

A single person with an earned income of $1000 would pay $100 in taxes. Continued on Page 12, Column 1

SHOOTS SECRET BRIDE, 14, KILLS SELF

PHILADELPHIA, April 23 (AP)—A youthful husband today critically wounded his child bride of two months then shot himself to death, Detective Sergt. John C. Curran reported.

He said the tragedy was a death pact agreed to by Benjamin Longo, 21, and Yolanda Goglia, 14, because the girl's parents, ignorant of their secret marriage Feb. 27, refused to let her see him. A further complication was added to their situation when Longo lost his job last week.

The couple arranged their rendezvous in League Island Park. Yolanda disclosed the tragedy when she staggered out with blood dripping from one hand due to a bullet wound just over the heart.

"My husband has been shot," she gasped after hailing an automobile which took her to a hospital.

About 250 yards up a shadowy side drive police found Longo's body, a .32 caliber pistol just beyond his right hand. Death had been instantaneous from a bullet in the heart.

Retaining sufficient strength to answer questions, Yolanda told Curran her husband shot her twice before turning the weapon on himself. Only one bullet wounded her, however. The detective said she had her marriage certificate with her.

When mothers of the young couple arrived at the hospital, neither knew the other's child was involved. Both collapsed.

Radio Cures Hens Of Fright, Egg Output Up 10 P. C.

RAMONA, Cal., April 23 (AP)—Listening to the radio 24 hours a day makes hens lay 10 per cent more eggs, C. H. Lee has discovered.

It's not the soothing effect of the music, Lee says. After a steady diet of radio programs, the hens refuse to be bothered by any noisy diversion. Even a roaring tractor outside their house doesn't cause a ruffled feather.

Lee bought 1500 young hens about a year ago and started raising chickens. But every time someone entered the henhouse, the biddies were thrown into hysterics. So Lee put in radios.

The hens take opera, swing or political speeches in stride. Most of them lay an egg a day. A few lay two.

Girl, 4, Critically Injured in Crash

Suffering a fractured skull when thrown against the windshield of an auto, four-year-old Jane Reid of Farrington st., Wollaston, was in a critical condition today at the Quincy City Hospital.

Police said the child was riding in a car driven by her grandfather, Arthur Tirrell, when the machine struck a parked truck near Neponset bridge. The impact threw the girl against the windshield and likewise caused slight injuries to her brother and sister, Kenneth, five, and Doris, 14.

Church Orders New Tune for Ancient Hymn

NEW YORK, April 23 (INS)—Contending that the hymn "Little Town of Bethlehem" is not sufficiently like a carol, the Protestant Episcopal Church today announced plans to change the tune. When the new hymnal appears in 1945, the old Christmas song will be geared to the traditional English air "Forest Green." The new tune will not be compulsory for the churches, it was said.

GUNGIRL NABBED—Recaptured after her second break from Odessa, Tex., jail is petite Isabelle Messmer, 24-year-old gungirl, who's serving a three-year term for murder. She told San Francisco police, "I'm glad it's over, I've been living like a rat in a hole."

Ship Ousts Stowaway Pup

Appearing pretty disturbed about it, a black Doberman Pinscher dog sat on the rough planks of India wharf and watched the Eastern Steamship liner Boston depart for New York.

And the pup had good reason to be indignant, for he had just been ignominiously hauled off the boat as a stowaway—and the Eastern Steamship Co. looks with great disfavor upon stowaways, of any breed.

The liner was almost ready to cast off and head down the bay when Harry I. Brooks, passenger manager of the line, spotted the Doberman weaving in and out among deck standers, as if searching for someone. But Brooks could find no registration for the dog with the ship's purser, as is required, and inquiries failed to locate an owner.

HE TRIED TO BE A REAL SEA-DOG

It was thought that the black dog might belong to one of a group of 53 high school students from Milford, N. H. They sailed on the liner for New York and a spring tour to Washington, D. C.

At the time of sailing it was impossible to contact all the students, but after the ship pulled away ship's crewmen began a canvas of the students.

Meanwhile the pup is being held at the Eastern Steamship Co. offices.

KILLED BY 'EMPTY' GUN

WEST HANOVER, April 23—Medical Examiner F. J. Curtin today wrote accidental death in the case of Frederick Werne, 18, killed by an "unloaded" shotgun of ancient make. Werne, officers said, halted a repair job in his home here to inspect the weapon, which he had supposed to be unloaded.

MANY FOREST FIRES STILL RAGING AS FIGHTERS HOPE FOR RAINFALL

While Marshfield summer residents began plans for a better and more beautiful summer colony, fire fighters from Cape Cod to the Berkshires today held in control more than a score of woodland blazes—battling against time and hoping for rain.

Every one of the many fires, which have kept firemen and volunteers fighting ceaselessly for three days, were reported under control today, but tinder-like conditions kept alive the menace of new devastation at any moment.

Rain, the one big hope of complete control, is not seen by the weather bureau for at least another 48 hours and then not in sufficient quantities to bring an end to the danger.

More than 10,000 acres of Massachusetts woodlands have been flame-blackened since the dry spell began 16 days ago. It was reported by State Conservation Commissioner J. Kenney. What the damage will finally total cannot be estimated for weeks to come.

REBUILDING BEGINS

Meanwhile at the summer colony section of Marshfield—where 450 cottages were levelled with $1,000,000 damage in four short hours—the work of reconstruction already was under way.

Insurance adjusters have made preliminary surveys, and it has been indicated that a large percentage of the loss was covered by insurance.

Those who were left homeless have been cared for by other residents of the town and the summer residents—the most of them from Greater Boston—have made plans to rebuild along the beautiful Marshfield beaches.

The one big obstacle to again raising the section appears to be a labor shortage, especially of carpenters.

"Why, last week I couldn't hire a carpenter to fix my garage door for love nor money," one householder complained. "How am I going to get men to rebuild a cottage?"

This seemed to be the general complaint, since skilled laborers have been to greatly in demand in the national defense program.

However, there were at least a dozen rebuilding jobs under way today, and other owners said they had been promised workers within the next few days.

SOLDIERS HELP

On the many other fire fronts, soldiers at Fort Devens and Camp Edwards were out in force to keep under control blazes which swept large areas about the army camps.

Other big fires of the day were in Wrentham, Plainville, North Attleboro, Bellingham on both sides of the Boston-Providence highway, in Falmouth, Barnstable, Hingham, Norwood, Norwell, Whitman, Abington, Andover, Quabbin watershed, Belchertown and Pelham.

In New Hampshire, at Claremont and Springfield, thousands of acres of timber had been burned and the fires were threatening to burst through fire lines established in an all-day fight.

At Hubbardstown, Vt., four buildings were destroyed including a Jewish boys' camp and buildings on Lake Horton. The flames exploded a dynamite cache in a storehouse.

Near Waterboro, Me., three square miles of forest were burned before hundreds of volunteers won control at the edge of a lake.

Dentists Tell How Habits Warp Face

By RENNIE TAYLOR

Associated Press Science Writer

SAN FRANCISCO, April 23—How little habits warp the smiles, displace the teeth and even twist the whole lower part of the face out of shape was shown to the California Dental Association today by Dr. Vernon L. Hunt and Dr. Bernard Matzen of Arcata, Cal.

Motion pictures of dozens of children with misshapen jaws, twisted noses, ugly, irregular teeth, overdeveloped tongues and other irregularities were exhibited. Dr. Hunt attributed them in part at least to habits.

Here are some of his findings: Little girls and boys who habitually bite their lower lips may develop protruding upper jaws or "duck teeth." Sometimes the lower becomes abnormally large from being thus treated, and the lower teeth become slanted inward.

UPTILTED NOSE

Breathing through the mouth can contribute toward the uptilting of the nose and a shortening of the upper lip, until the youngster cannot close his lips.

Some juveniles who habitually stick their tongue forward between their teeth prevent the upper front teeth from growing downward to meet the lower teeth, and an unsightly gap results.

The young girl who sits with chin cupped in her hand because she thinks her profile looks well that way may end up with a receding jaw.

Some boys habitually clench or set their teeth. Often they turn out to have lower teeth with a staved-in appearance.

The youngster who sleeps with hands, palms together, on the pillow and cheek resting on the back of one hand, may cause a flattening on one side of the jaw. Dr. Hunt measured the amount of pressure exerted on one side of the face in that position and reported it was 14 pounds.

That much weight repeatedly applied to the same side of the face a few minutes every night is sufficient to deform the jaw.

TONGUES OVERSIZE

Some youngsters habitually chew their tongues. Dr. Hunt pictured some whose tongues under that form of stimulation became oversize—too big for their mouths.

The smiles of many a person are tilted or warped because of some defect resulting from habit, Dr. Hunt said.

He urged dentists to watch young patients for defective facial muscles and to restore muscular function by exercises if possible. This was recommended in addition to the usual tooth and jaw correcting practices of the orthodontist.

Son's Story Wins Dad Divorce

Amado Rizzo of Revere at West End, today had freedom from his wife, Rose, of Cambridge, and custody of their four children after one of them, a 12-year-old son, testified against his mother in Middlesex Probate Court.

The boy, John Rizzo, told Judge Arthur E. Beane he had seen his mother kick his father, and, he added that he understood the oath he had taken and knew what would happen to him if he told a lie.

"I would be severely punished by God," he answered, in response to a question by Judge Beane.

Rizzo testified his wife kicked him so severely that he required an operation and that she had also thrown a flatiron at him.

Camp Edwards Bulges With 25,381 Soldiers

Army men at Camp Edwards today were just about ready to hang up the SRO sign.

The military reservation, home of the Yankee Division, is within a thousand men of "standing room only," said Lieut. Col. Paul Murray, post commander.

At present, there are 25,381 soldiers there, said the officer, adding that 26,439 would be "a full house."

At Fort Devens, old timers of the First Division hailed the news that Col. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., 53, has been ordered to return to the command of the 26th Infantry stationed there.

In the World War, veterans recalled that Roosevelt, son of the late President, won numerous decorations, including the Distinguished Service Cross. The 26th Infantry made history at St. Mihiel and the Meuse-Argonne.

Recently, Roosevelt termed the First Division the spearhead of Uncle Sam's Army and added "should there come another war, that is where I wish to be again."

Vigilance was being maintained at both Devens and Edwards as military officials and State Police sought a pyromaniac believed to have set two fires that broke out inside and at opposite ends of Camp Edwards.

One fire was discovered less than a quarter of a mile from the hospital area, made up of some 80 buildings at Camp Edwards.

At Port Devens, officials called off further daytime maneuvers in a move to prevent any possible woods fire being started as a result of Army activities in the vicinity of the camp.

For the last two days, military units out on problems have twice been interrupted to be sent out instead to fight brush fires started near Port Devens under mysterious circumstances.

At Camp Edwards, the 181st Infantry stayed out all night engaging in night drills and bivouac.

CIGARETTE BILL SHELVED

AUGUSTA, Me., April 23—A bill proposing a two-cent-a-package cigarette tax was shelved in the State Senate today after senators twice dickered on the measure, 15-15.

The two votes on the bill, which holds House approval, came on motions to accept favorable and unfavorable reports of the taxation committee.

Youngster Goes On Baby Marathon

Little Robert Smith, Jr., 2½, of Pinecrest ave., Saugus, certainly couldn't read the news about the B. A. A. marathons—but perhaps someone told him about them.

Anyway, Robert established some sort of a record of his own, for after being reported missing he was found galli galloping through Cliftondale three miles from home.

Cardinal to Lead Rite For Catholic Women

Highlight of the second and final day of the Diocesan Congress of Catholic Women, Cardinal O'Connell was scheduled to preside at special benediction services for the conference in St. Clement's Church at 4:30 p. m. today.

At the conference itself in Hotel Somerset, speakers included Rev. George M. Dowd, diocesan director of Catholic Youth Organization and Rt. Rev. Robert P. Barry diocesan director of the Catholic Charitable Bureau.

ENDS WITH DINNER

The congress will end with a speakers' dinner with Hon. Clare Gerald Fenerty as main speaker.

During previous sessions, Edward B. Hanly, instructor at Boston College Law School, declared the modern secular system of education is teaching youth the theories and philosophies of Hitlerism and depriving them of any true democratic philosophy.

"Secular education today," Hanly said, "in theory and philosophy is not unlike the principles of Mr. Hitler. Educators devote themselves to making youth sceptical and materialistic, and have deprived them of any philosophy to live by."

'CARDINAL TENET'

"Now at the eleventh hour, they are trying to invent for the young some specious slogan to die for. They are un-American in their beliefs, as our dependence on God is asserted in the Declaration of Independence."

Hanly declared a famed American educator in a secular college recently wrote that religious instruction for pupils would "sap their state consciousness and interfere with the notion that the state is the supreme power in life."

"Such a theory," Hanly said, "is the cardinal tenet of Hitlerism. And this tendency in education is no fictionalized report of the Catholic church, but is supported by our most independent observers."

'Ware Petting As You Drive

Public Safety Commr. Eugene M. McSweeney isn't a "kill-joy" by any manner of means but he's got to call a halt somewhere on the boys and girls who mix their petting and gasoline.

So it became apparent today when his troopers throughout the state were warned to take drastic action against amorous one-armed drivers.

"The young driver is often romantic and uses one arm for driving and the other for his lady friend," the State Police head observed. "Some of them manage to do a pretty good job at both. But it's a dangerous system. Girl friends and gasoline don't mix and there's got to be a halt."

WPA CHECK FORGER JAILED

After pleading guilty in Federal Judge George C. Sweeney's court to forging WPA checks and stealing mail, Harry W. Sawyer, 20, formerly of Lowell and Lawrence and having no permanent address, today was under a sentence of 2½ years in prison.

A Letter

OF RECOMMENDATION FOR A GENTLEMAN OF VIRGINIA

On June 21, 1775, Thomas Cushing of Philadelphia addressed a letter to James Bowdoin, Governor of Massachusetts and the first President of our forebear, The Massachusetts Bank. It read:

"Dear Governor Bowdoin:

"Philadelphia

June 21, 1775.

"You will doubtless have been informed that the Congress have unanimously appointed George Washington, Esq. General & Commander-in-Chief of the American forces.

"I beg leave to recommend him to your respectful notice. He is a compleat gentleman. He is sensible, amiable, vir-tuous, modest and brave. I promise myself that your acquaintance with him will afford you great pleasure and I doubt not his agreeable behavior and good conduct will give great satisfaction to our people of all denominations.

Thomas Cushing"

As the ink was drying on this letter, General Washington was preparing to journey on horseback from Philadelphia to New England. Twelve days later he took command of the Continental Army on Cambridge Common and the colonies looked eagerly to New England for men and material to support the common cause of national defense.

Once again NEW ENGLAND goes into action !

IN our present emergency, it is the responsibility of New England, the most highly industrialized section of the nation, to provide America with ships and planes, rifles and artillery, and much of the equipment necessary to support a mechanized army and two-ocean navy.

With less than seven per cent of the nation's population, New England has already received approximately fifteen per cent of the defense contracts, with prospects of an immensely expanded program ahead. What factors have influenced this concentration of defense orders? First, undeniable leadership as the nation's greatest source of skilled labor and capable management. Second, the abundance of manufacturing facilities in this area. But above all, America knows from past experience that at a time of national crisis New England can be depended upon to act speedily and effectively for the common cause.

There is urgent need for more New England manufacturers to participate in defense production. For information as to what products and what types of manufacturing facilities are needed, get in touch with the office of the Coordinator of Defense for New England, Federal Reserve Bank, 30 Pearl Street, Boston, Massachusetts. A booklet dealing with this vital subject may be obtained by calling or writing the office of the Coordinator.

This bank, together with the other banks of New England, is making available its full share of credit for defense purposes. If you require funds to carry forward your defense work, we suggest that you talk with your bank.

FARM BREAKS UP 38-YEAR MARRIAGE

The old refrain, "How You Gonna Keep 'EM Down on the Farm" etc., came up in testimony in Middlesex Probate Court today.

Mrs. Mary D. Hatch of Lexington was explaining to Judge Joseph W. Monahan how her marriage of 38 years had come to break up.

"My husband and I were living on a farm in Lexington," Mrs. Hatch testified. "My husband left me. He said he didn't like life on a farm. He said there were too many problems."

From the farm Hatch presumably headed for the big city but now, his wife said, lives in Hollis, Me.—population, 1287.

The mother of four grown children, Mrs. Hatch was granted an uncontested divorce on grounds of desertion.

She didn't really mind arguing with her husband, Mrs. Laure D. Strzesak of Broadway, Cambridge, told Judge Monahan, but when it came to arguing with him while he was holding her in a corner of the wall with a knife pointed at her throat—that was too much.

The knife holding episode was but one of the many exciting incidents in her married life, Mrs. Strzesak said. She married Stanley Strzesak in 1933.

She was granted an uncontested divorce on grounds of cruel and abusive treatment.

Housing Blast Injures Two

Two men were injured today when fragments from a dynamite blast showered 28 job-seekers standing in line at a federal housing project, Bickford and Heath sts., Roxbury.

George Riley, 37, of Cummins highway, Roxbury, suffered a possible skull fracture and abrasions of right cheek and shoulder.

Luigi Latanno, 56, of Webster st., East Boston, cut upper lip and left leg. The blast was one of a series set off by workmen to clear the way for foundations.

Company K Inducted Into State Guard

Company K of the 26th Infantry was officially inducted into the Massachusetts State Guard before a crowd which filled the 101st Armory, East Newton st., South End.

Maj. Patrick McQueen presided at the ceremonies. Under command of Capt. Edward F. Trainor, the new company in civilian clothes marched through maneuvers.

POLL TAX ERROR

TRANSCRIPT TO END CAREER OF 111 YEARS

After nearly 111 years of publication, the Boston Evening Transcript, one of the most famous daily newspapers in the world, will cease publication a week from today.

An announcement to this effect was in preparation today at the Transcript office, Washington and Milk sts., historic site of Benjamin Franklin's birthplace.

Boston itself was just 200 years old when the first issue of the Transcript appeared, Saturday, July 25, 1830, and since that time the history of the newspaper practically has been the history of the city.

And as the paper itself has been an institution with a name synonymous with old Boston, so have been the names of the Transcript's editors and writers.

PAPER'S UPHILL FIGHT

With the paper's passing too, will go into oblivion many newspaper legends, particularly the story of a visit by a group of pressmen to a Beacon Hill home, where the disdainful butler announced:

"There are three reporters and a gentleman from the Transcript at the door."

The death of the Transcript is really a story of the late depression. With a loss in lucrative financial advertising, the circulation plummeted. As a result, specialty and luxury stores pared their advertising allocations to the once sturdy bible of Back Bay and Beacon Hill.

In a valiant attempt to hold circulation, the Transcript of recent years had undergone several transfusions of new funds and new ideas, a modernization and streamlining.

ADVERTISING DROPS

Under this forcing, circulation rose to 30,000, but advertising, the real life blood, failed to increase sufficiently, and increases in prices of the Transcript issues (from three cents to five cents daily and ten cents on Saturdays) did not aid materially. This week the circulation was down to about 15,000 daily.

First published as a tabloid paper, 9 by 13 inches, by Lynde M. Walter, 30-year-old Harvard graduate, it was carried on at his death, 12 years later, by his sister, Cornelia. Only marriage ended her five-year editorship which had shocked Boston at its inception.

Rosa Sargent, followed Cornelia Walter, and after him came Editor Daniel Noyes Haskell. By now the "little Transcript" had become a full-sized and powerful Transcript.

LIST OF EDITORS

Haskell died two years after the great Boston fire of '72, and William Alfred Hovey and George Snell Mandell, son of the first president of the company, took over. In 1881, Edward Henry Clement occupied the editorial chair, and Robert Lincoln O'Brien, later of the Herald, followed him. Succeeding O'Brien was James T. Williams, Jr., who was succeeded in 1925 by Henry Turner Claus. In 1930 Robert Lincoln O'Brien's son, Lincoln O'Brien, took the Transcript helm, which was now becoming a bit wobbly.

In 1933, new capital was invested by a Boston group and there was a reorganization plan, with Robert M. Johnson, who had been in the textile business, elected president and business manager. He is currently in charge.

Bombed Out Twice, Woman Tells King; Waits Third Blast

LONDON, April 23 (AP)—Tearing London's bomb-scarred East End today the King and Queen were told by a woman with a shawl over her head:

"I have been bombed out twice and I am waiting now to be bombed out again, but I shall stick it."

"That's the spirit," said the King, shaking her hand warmly. In the blasted ruins of a girls' school the royal visitors were shown a picture of their two little daughters, Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose, lying in the debris.

The Queen stooped and picked up the picture and gazed at it pensively for some minutes.

U. S. EMBASSY IN LONDON SMASHED BY BOMBS

LONDON, April 23 (AP)—Many widows on first and second floors of the United States embassy were smashed by concussions from large high explosive bombs which fell nearby in a recent raid. The staff escaped injury.

Other places damaged included St. George's Roman Catholic Church at Southwark, the Overseas League in St. James st. near St. James' Palace and the Thomas Wallis department store in Holborn.

Chief damage at the embassy in Grosvenor square was in the offices of Minister W. Averell

Harrison, where glass was shattered across the room.

Ambassador John G. Winant and Mrs. Winant saw the pictures on the walls of their apartment dance when a bomb ripped through a three-story building near the embassy.

Two members of the embassy service staff were hurled from the front steps into the foyer by the force of this blast, but picked themselves up unhurt.

Italian Marines In China Row

SHANGHAI, April 23 (AP)—Italian marines aboard the Yugoslav freighter Tomislav tonight were unofficially reported to have forced withdrawal of Shanghai customs police from the gangplank under threat of machine-gun fire.

The police, it was said, started to board the freighter which the Italian marines took over yesterday, along with the Italian liner Conte Verde.

Italian consular authorities said the vessels were boarded "upon orders from Rome," while British authorities charged that the action was a violation of the neutrality of the international port of Shanghai.

Tobruk Escape Balked by Axis

ROME, April 23 (AP)—German and Italian troops have frustrated a new attempt by the beleaguered British garrison at Tobruk to force its way out of that Libyan port, the Italian high command reported today.

On the east African front, the daily war bulletin declared, Italian forces also repulsed British attacks in the Desse sector of northern Ethiopia.

The Italians said the German air force again had bombed the British Mediterranean base of Malta last night and acknowledged British raids on Axis' positions in Libya. One British plane was reported downed.

RAF Planes Again Bomb Brest Navy Base

LONDON, April 23 (AP)—British warplanes last night again bombed the naval base at Brest, where the 26,000-ton Nazi battleships Gneisenau and Scharnhorst are still sheltering, the air ministry declared today.

Bombs fell "in the target area," an announcement said. The ministry did not lay claim directly, however, to hits on the two warships. During daylight yesterday, the ministry declared, British bombers damaged a heavily-loaded 2000-ton supply ship and a minesweeper off the Norwegian coast.

NOVA PILBEAM ESCAPES

LONDON, April 23 (INS)—Nova Pilbeam, the English movie star, narrowly escaped injury in the recent explosion of a huge German aerial bomb, it was disclosed today.

Rogers Tops B. C. Orators

Judged the best speaker in a field of six contestants, Charles N. Rogers of 182 Commonwealth ave., Chestnut Hill, yesterday won first prize of a purse of $20 in the annual Boston College High School senior oratorical contest.

The prize was offered by Rev. Francis L. Archdeacon, S. J., high school rector. Rogers' topic was "The Decline of Democracy."

Judges for the contest, attended by the entire faculty and student body, were Rev. Robert E. Sheridan, S. J., chairman; Rev. Henry F. Wennerberg, S. J., of the Church of the Immaculate Conception; Prof. Leonard S. Whalen, director of the Immaculate Conception Liturgical Choir; and Joseph H. Faren, secretary-director of Young Men's Catholic Ass'n.

Hogan, who formed the squad three years ago and has given blood for many transfusions, was stricken ill Friday. He is a fireman attached to Engine 4, Lynn, and lives on Manning rd., Lynn.

be able to continue the fight."
"Our will, the will of the government and of the Greek people . . . mean resistance to the end on the part of Greek troops, which have 'ubornly fought beside the English Allies who rushed to help us and are still fighting on Greek territory," the King said.

REASSURES PEOPLE

And to the Greek people, engulfed by Nazi's invaders: "Have courage—good days will come again."

The fate of the British, badly outnumbered and out-gunned even before the collapse of Greece's Army of the Northwest, was uncertain. Two choices appeared:

"To abandon Greece entirely, presumably in a 'Dunkirk' escape with the help of the British fleet."

To attempt a hazardous retreat through Athens to the Peloponnese, the "watchdog" of Southern Greece.

While authorized quarters in Berlin asserted that German tanks had broken through the storied Thermopylae pass—and even spoke of the "theoretical possibility" that Nazi advance units might be already before Athens—the official high command communiqué merely noted:

"Germany's army movements in Greece are proceeding according to plan."

"Forces advancing by way of Lamia further south compelled English rearwards to fight," at Thermopylae.

SUPPLIES CUT OFF

In London, the British acknowledged that some Greek troops in the center of the line were cut off from supply bases, but declared that the main body of the Greek army was established in new positions and fighting bravely alongside BEP soldiers.

The Italian high command said the Greek veterans of the six-month Albanian campaign had capitulated last night after they were trapped in a pincer maneuver of Fascist troops diving down the Ionian coast and a German thrust from the east through Ioannina.

But the Greeks in the northwest, where Italians said they had been ordered to hold out at all costs to cover the right flank, apparently clung to their mountain defenses long enough for other Greek forces and the British to withdraw along the road to Athens.

German military leaders appeared to be taking a page from ancient history by turning their high-powered war machine into action paralleling the strategy of Xerxes who smothered the Greeks and took Athens in 480 B. C.

DISASTER FOR SPARTANS

Spartan King Leonidas formed a defense line of 7000 men in Thermopylae pass and repulsed early frontal attacks by the Persians, but one of their generals reached the rear of Leonidas' force through another pass. The result was disaster for the Spartans.

Like that Persian general who went to the rear of the Spartans, the German Luftwaffe has flown over the defenders of Thermopylae and, wave on wave, has pounded southern Greece as well as ships in Greek ports.

Athens itself had seven alarms in 24 hours yesterday but was not bombed. The raiders struck bravely, however, at the port of Piraeus, five miles away, and other coastal points nearby.

deductions except his personal $800 exemption would have to pay a tax of $29 instead of the present $4.

BIG INCREASE

A married couple with two children would pay $100 instead of the present $15 on an earned net income of $3500, after all deductions except the $2800 family exemption. The Treasury plan, in brief, is as follows:

The present 4 per cent basic rate would be retained. In addition suitcases would be imposed, beginning at 11 per cent for the first $2000 of taxable income. To this total of 15 per cent would be the combined basic tax and the surtax. Thus the effective rate on the bottom bracket would become 16.5 per cent.

(The program was submitted to the ways and means committee behind closed doors and first oral reports from several committeemen were that the Treasury had recommended a boost in the normal income tax from 4 to 6 per cent—4.4 to 6.6 after adding the surtax. A typewritten statement of the Treasury, obtained later, showed no such proposal.)

The suggested new surtax, starting at the very bottom of taxable income, contrasts sharply with present rates beginning at 4 per cent on taxable income above $4000.

TREASURY PROPOSALS

In addition to the 11 per cent rate on the lowest bracket, the Treasury proposed: 14 per cent on $2000 to $4000; 16 on $4000 to $6000; 19 on $6000 to $8000; 21 on $8000 to $10,000; 23 on $10,000 to $12,000; 25 on $12,000 to $14,000; 27 on $14,000 to $16,000; 29 on $16,000 to $18,000; 31 on $18,000 to $20,000; 33 on $20,000 to $22,000; 36 on $22,000 to $26,000.

From that point on, the rates climb upward to 51 per cent on $50,000 to $60,000; 57 on $60,000 to $80,000; 62 on $100,000 to $150,000; 72 on $500,000 to $1,000,000 and 75 on income above $5,000,000. The topmost brackets would be the same as at present.

A corporation income surtax of 6 per cent also would be added to the present normal corporation rate of 25 per cent and exemptions from the excess profits tax would be lowered. The Treasury estimated that these two changes would add $933,500,000 to revenue.

PARTIALLY EXEMPT

Informed sources said that use of surtaxes in increasing both the individual and corporate levies was intended to make partially exempt federal securities bear a heavier share of the tax burden. They are subject to surtaxes but not to normal taxes. Banks and insurance companies held many of these securities.

By reducing the exemption for estate taxes from $40,000 to $25,000 and increasing rates in the lower and middle brackets, the Treasury estimated that $353,000,000 in new revenue would be obtained.

Boosted tobacco taxes would yield an estimated $200,000,000 and increased liquor taxes $192,200,000. All other excise taxes, including many new ones, were estimated to produce $342,600,000. Among the new taxes were 5 per cent on the cost of transportation tickets and 5 per cent on candy and chewing gum. Soft drinks in bottles or glasses would be taxed 1 cent.

Proposed Income Taxes May Up Costs 7 Times

WASHINGTON, April 23 (AP)—Under the proposed Treasury plan to raise $3,600,000,000 in additional revenue individuals in some instances would pay seven times as much income tax in 1941 as they paid in 1940 if Congress approves.

In figuring examples net income was taken as the remainder after deductions for taxes, interest, contributions, etc., without subtraction of personal exemptions or credits for dependents.

Single persons get $300 exemption and married persons $2000, and a credit of $400 is allowed for each dependent.

Each of the following cases assumes that all income is earned and in figuring the normal taxes an earned income credit of 10 per cent was allowed.

| 10,000                      | 80      | $1238   |

The present taxes are determined in this way: The single man with $1000 earned net income would deduct his earned income credit of $100, leaving $900, from which would be deducted his personal exemption of $800, leaving $100 taxable at 4 per cent. His normal tax, therefore, would be $4 to which would be added the 10 per cent, or 40 cents, defense surtax imposed by Congress last year. The total tax thus would be $4.40 (in the above table, the taxes are given only in dollars, disregarding the cents).

Under the new schedule proposed by the Treasury the same man would figure his normal tax in the same way without adding the surtax. Then he would compute the proposed new surtax 11 per cent in his case in this manner: Deduct the $400 personal exemption but not the earned income credit, leaving $600 subject to surtax. The $22 surtax would be added to the normal tax of $4.

making a total of $26, to which he then would add the defense surtax of 10 per cent of $26, for a grand total of $28.60.

BOSTON After DARK

By GEORGE HOLLAND

CURLEY IS IN THE MAYORALTY fight, all right, but the announcement of his candidacy will be delayed until August, according to present plans . . . A concentrated 12 weeks' drive for votes, with the candidate making only a half-dozen major speeches instead of discussing the city's problems ward-by-ward, as was the case last running, is the strategy at this writing.

JIMMY CAGNEY and George M. Cohan are seeing ball games together in New York . . . The red-head of the films will do a 90-minute take-off of Mr. Cohan in the picture, "Yankee Doodle Dandy," based on the Cohan career . . . There certainly should be a scene showing how George M. and the same Jimmy—now of Martha's Vineyard—first met . . . George was the "about" (as well as the idol) of the famous New York Friars' Club . . . Jimmy hopped bells at the club for a living—while he awaited a chance to break in as a chorusman in a Broadway show.

MR. COHAN, INCIDENTALLY, HAS MADE a contract clause out of his aversion to publicizing his family life . . . The picture will have to adhere to the story of George's various triumphs as song writer, actor, playwright, producer . . . What are they going to do about a love story? . . . Warner Bros., the producers of the picture, would appreciate an answer to that one.

TREMENDOUS BALLYHOOD is emanating from New York about the DiMaggio's great hitting, fielding and throwing—his arm having come back after last year's futility . . . But none of the stories mentions that his kid brother, Dominic, of the Red Sox, is topping the great Joe in the batting standing.

A NEW YORK SPORTS WRITER charges that the Fenway Park groundkeepers give the left side of the diamond an extra wetting-down so that Joe Cronin, who is "on the heavy-footed side," will have less trouble with ground balls . . . The same writer says that the Shibe Park staff kept the pitching mound higher than the 15-inch regulation pile throughout Lefty Grove's tenure as the best thrower in Philadelphia.

TOMMY LUTHER'S SENSATIONAL showing in his first week of riding at Gaiety is attributed to the jockey's excellent condition his best in years . . . Tommy trained with the Glen Riddle colts in winter quarters in Ot' Kalatuck . . . In underworld jargon, a long sentence is an "Easter basket" . . . We don't know why . . . Mr. Timilty's sleuths are checking carefully the activities of a pair of Boston stockbrokers . . . (It is one of the few signs of life along State Street).

TO SAY THAT MORTON DOWNEY quit Boston in a mood of mutual regret—the other part of the mutuality being the Mayfair—is to put it too mildly . . . The Downey charm and willingness, coupled with the Downey pipes (at their very best again) delighted Boston nightclubbers . . . And more "new faces" along the ring-side were noted the past week than in any similar stanza old miners can remember . . . If Morton hadn't played the Mayfair, he could have had two weeks at the Ritz Carlton Roof, we hear . . . But the singer's desire to play a summer engagement at Lake Tahoe, on the California-Nevada line, probably would have intervened anyway.

SPEAKING OF SINGERS, the short-wave from England these nights is giving off a thrill via the personable voice of Leslie Hutchinson, a music hall favorite of happier times . . . Here would be a real acquisition for some "soap-opera" aimed at the busy housewife . . . The Hutchinson voice has a throaty quality comparable to Bing Crosby's, and with a ring of manliness like Bing's.

IF A DISCLAIMER isn't forthcoming from Notre Dame relative to the alleged attempt to grab off some Boston College prospects the strong pro-Leahy faction of the B. C. alumni will be on the spot more definitely than it has been since Frank quit the Heights for South Bend . . . Much of the criticism of Leahy's walkout on his long-term contract was stifled by the strength of his staunch supporters among the grads . . . Their "golden boy" could do no wrong after two years of turning on the charm—and winning football games . . . (Although it isn't important, we still hold to the theory that a contract is written to confirm—in writing—a meal-of minds.)

HOLLYWOOD IS LIONIZING a batch of RAF heroes, and something must have taken place whereby it has ceased to be a violation of international law for uniformed members of the armed forces of a belligerent to visit a non-belligerent country . . . Boston—or a large and important part of it—will get a flash of some RAF lads Thursday night when the annual ball of the Boston Newspaper Benevolent Association is held at the Copley Plaza . . . At least three of the British flyers are expected.

Carmen Miranda Steals Paramount-Fenway Film

"Yi, Yi, Yi, Yi," as the title of a song, may not make much sense, but when Carmen Miranda, the fascinating "Brazilian Bombshell," sings it in "That Night in Rio," it is the answer to everything.

Miranda and "That Night in Rio" come to the Paramount and Fenway screens tomorrow, and if you've happened to miss them you owe it to yourself to catch them at either of the twin houses.

The fiery Miranda, discovered by the Shuberts in South Africa and imported for a musical comedy last season, steals the show in "That Night in Rio." She has for costars Alice Faye and Don Ameche, who never were more pleased to meet.

Mrs. Faye, in the picture, is married to Ameche, the dashing Brazilian boulevardier. Baron Duarte, who she doubles as an American nightclub performer in love with Miranda, his singing and dancing.

Miranda's other song numbers are "Chica, Chica, Boom Chic," "Boa Noite," "They Met in Rio," and "The Baron Is in Conference," all by Mack Gordon and Harry Warren.

Sponsoring cast includes S. Z. Sakal, J. Carol Naish, Curt Bois and Leonid Kinskey. The picture was directed by Irvin Cummings. "Shadows on the Stairs," with Frieda Inescort, Heather Angel and Bruce Lester, is the second feature.

FRANCES DEE
In Trans-Lux Film

Trans-Lux Drama Hit

Just how far loyalty should be carried when a girl knows her father is a crook and a killer—in effect if not in actual deed—is the problem faced by Frances Dee in Republic's "A Man Betrayed," which opens today on Trans-Lux screen.

Daughter of a powerful and ruthless political boss, she knows her father is indirectly responsible for wholesale murders. She knows his empire has been built upon unsavory graft—and yet, realizing the factors that have made his life better, she cleaves to him with a fanatical devotion.

The devotion is put to a grueling test with the advent of young John Wayne in the film. An awkward, pangling country lawyer, he single-handedly brings to light and wipes out the vast political machine and sends "Boss" Edward Ellis, the father of the girl he has come to love, to the penitentiary.

Harold Huber, Alexander Granach, Ward Bond and Barnett Parker are in supporting roles, John H. Auer directed.

The second feature, "Public Enemy's Wife," co-stars Pat O'Brien and Cesar Romero with Margaret Lindsay.

'FANTASIA'

NEW MEDIUM

You sit right up there with the orchestra when you go to the Majestic to see "Fantasia," in the opinion of Leopold Stokowski, who claims that the amazing musical recording and reproducing equipment which was created especially for this Disney masterpiece actually gives audiences the feeling of sitting in the same room with the musicians as they play the brilliant "Fantasia" score.

Previous sound recording and projection methods, excellent as they were, never succeeded in capturing the exact qualities of tone and subtleties of phrasing of voices or instruments.

That was one of the problems Walt Disney posed to his staff of sound engineers when work on "Fantasia" commenced.

Disney's dream of translating great music into pictures was coming true, but he also wanted to give audiences the music in all its power and vitality. After the two-and-a-half years which went into the making of "Fantasia," Disney and Stokowski feel that it is not a finished product but an indication of the great possibilities the future may develop in this new entertainment medium.

Tells How King Walked

1 If this were a talking picture the title undoubtedly would be, "And the King Waked"

John Barton, the Jester, Master of Tobacco Road, now at the Plymouth, spent 25 years in England in music halls. With his wife, Mrs. Ashley, he was the leader of an illustrious company called "the Colossus in London and Continental Performance." He was the King Edward VII and Queen Alexandra.

A new elevator had been installed in the theater to help the King and Queen move to the Royal Box. Edward entered it, remaining, quite a contrived, and then waited. On its initial trip the elevator stuck. After 10 minutes of waiting, during which time the technician refused to work the Royal Party emerged and with all the dignity that could be summoned marched up the stairs.

A s Herby announced booking w'l bring John Galsworthy's latest production "Thea" by Somerset Maugham and Gey Bulton, starring Cornelia Oss Sanner, to the Walnut Theater for a two weeks run beginning next Monday, as the first play of the Theater Guild season.

This play was first presented with great success, last week in Washington and Mr. Golden had planned to carry it from there only to Baltimore before closing its spring tour and putting it in moth balls in preparation for an opening in New York next fall.

The success of the Washington company was such, however, that Mr. Golden decided to bring the play to Boston and thus, theatergoers here will have a chance to see before New York this fast appearance of Cornelia Otis Scarborough as a star of a new play.

Our Austen Lake in England

EVENING AMERICAN, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 23, 1941

By AUSTEN LAKE

Staff Reporter, Boston American, Copyright 1941

ON TROOP CONVOY TO ENGLAND (Final Day)—All day we have been steaming past the misty mainlands of beleaguered Britain. The sea has changed from a dull aquamarine to a fresh, absinthe green and no longer comes charging at the ship's bows in mountain ranges.

The troops, land-hungry after the long voyage, crowd the decks and brood on the fog-veiled smudges that, beneath a roof of gray rain clouds, is Scotland. After a long, nervous confinement the men want to feel firmament under their feet, and are tantalized by the deliberate crawl of the convoy.

But there are heavy mine fields to negotiate and, later, submarine booms to pass, so the fleet just oozes along as dusk falls, following each other's dimmed-down stern lights like circus elephants holding one another's tails.

At long last anchor chains rattle, sirens toot terminal signals and our hazardous argosy is over. Around us in an indigo gloom are faint strings of shielded harbor lights like rows of incandescent beads.

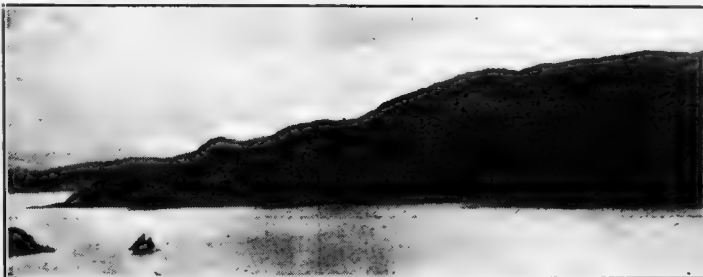

During the evening the commanding officers closet themselves tactfully in their cabins and let all inferior grades, officers and men, spill overflowing emotions in a bedlam that sounds like feeding time at the zoo.

The canteen beverage stocks miraculously proved ample and the cost cheap, so the men transform the Dutchman into a New Year's saturnalia of liquidations, songs, hollers and hoots. A 23-year-old flight lieutenant with a Scotch burr nominates himself master of ceremonies, mounting a piano and calling for speeches and toasts, submitting to a raucous razzing from the Australians and Canadians who finally haul him down minus sections of his most essential clothing.

CAPTAIN CHEERED

Layers of cigarette smoke swirl eddy with the movement of the men. Cheers for the Dutchman's captain—a choleric little man with a ruddy, elfin complexion. Hip-hip! Cheers for the British Navy. Now for the ship's chef, for Winnie Churchill, the RAF.

Then, as the lounge lights blink suggestive of curfew, the men go out on the boat deck, standing in the darkness son of their voices bespeaks single-purpose and the core of idealism that lies beneath. For a moment war's coarsening effect, degrading hardships and the cheapness of human life melt away and they are bonded in a masculine freemasonry, one and inseparable.

KITS PACKED

Sleep is fitful and last ship-

board breakfasts were served by the little Javanese in the half light of pre-dawn. Kits are packed and trundled to the hatchways for removal in winch-ham-mocks. Last-minute musters are held and the easy informalities of shipboard give way to rigid, military ritual. An Australian Wing Commander who had sung music hall parodies and pantomimed comic parts during the previous evening, conforms his features in a grim mask and barks orders that snap like the flick of a wet towel. Troops which had held beery hilarities in the after quarters stand stiffly, stamping hobnailed heels with concerted clicks. After voyage-long indulgence sergeants salute again, officers are buttoned smartly, speech is clipped, routine resumed.

And presently from the wharves a lighter comes out carrying a scattering of men in dark-colored uniforms and the scarlet hat-bands of the general staff, debarkations officers, medical examiners, military police, port authorities and all the punctilio personnel of army bureaucracy.

HUMAN FREIGHT

Across the harbor speckled with ships of all sizes, from small coastal freighters to the grim gray warships, our convoy mates are already loading into ferry transports, solid masses of human freight under push-room helmets, fifty-pound packs and slinging snug-nosed rifles. The blue ranks on the Dutchman's deck watch enviously.

Planes Pound Plymouth Again in All-Night Raid

PLYMOUTH, England, April 23 (AP)—The Luftwaffe smashed at Plymouth during the second successive night, piling on death and destruction in an already hard-hit city.

The violent assault left many fires blazing and caused considerable damage.

The attacking planes, diving through a thunderous anti-aircraft barrage, were over the coastal area until nearly dawn. The assault started slowly, developed into a shattering hail of incendiaries and high explosives, then died away.

BOMBERS RETURN

After the kill, the droning bombers and escorting fighters returned again in waves. Although the attack was severe, the government said it did not match in intensity previous raids on this area.

At the height of the attack, the bombed area seemed a lurid wall of flames and smoke.

Parachute flares were used at first to light targets. After them, the Luftwaffe poured on bombs of all sizes. Homes, business buildings, churches, hospitals and theaters were hit.

With bombs exploding about them, rescue crews worked hours to release persons trapped in shelters.

By daybreak, emergency feeding centers were set up for the homeless. Special convoys of food and supplies poured in as the townspeople went grimly about the task of restoring conditions of normality.

WALES TOWNS HIT

Even as this work went on, German planes were reported in the vicinity of two South Wales towns during the morning.

Plymouth is on the southwest coast. A south coast town also was attacked last night and the bombs were reported to have fallen entirely on the residential section.

A number of persons were buried in the wreckage of their houses. It was said, and a direct hit on a shelter containing 30 persons caused numerous casualties.

waiting the tedium of paper examinations to end.

Overhead protective squadrons of fighter planes circle. About the harbor warships point the snouts of their anti-aircraft guns aloft, shells in the gun breeches and waiting. Across England huge electric ears listen for the hum of approaching aerial hate and ready to telephone warnings. But none come! The harbor lies tranquilly in winter sunshine. Gulls wheel with thin screams. Tugs chug busily. Waiting troop trains are on the docks.

And finally it happens! Two flat decked naval lighters poked off from shore and nuzzle alongside the Dutchman. Hawsears are thrown, gangplanks rolled down and the airforce began to stream gingerly over the slippery footing. And presently the lighters clear and mooch toward the wharves where the little toy engines and coaches with gondola compartments wait. And finally, after a series of shrill penny whistles, the little engines puff off with their loads—mystery bound for unnamed, secret goals in the English hinterland. The long voyage is over!

Clubs Open Haverhill Photo Show

A salon made up of the best photographic shots by members of the five outstanding camera clubs of Essex County, sponsored by the Haverhill Camera Club, continues to May 4, at the Public Library, Summer St., Haverhill.

Two hundred photographs from a wide selection of subjects have been hung for judgment by a salon committee. Photographs winning the highest number of points will be hung at the Topsfield Fair next fall as the first annual exhibit of the Essex County Council of Camera Clubs.

The exhibit will be opened officially by Mayor A. B. G. Olson of Haverhill this evening and delegations from the member clubs of Lawrence, Newburyport, Salem and Lynn will attend.

During the two weeks of the exhibition there will be lectures and demonstrations of photographic techniques and processes, movies and Kodachrome slides.

By forming a circle, more than 250 amateur photographers of the five localities have banded together. They plan to obtain distinguished lecturers on photography, hold inter-club exhibits, conventions and photography trips. Applications for membership will be received during the exhibit.

Damon Runyon, the noted writer and columnist, believes the strain of the European war is weighing on President Roosevelt and that the United States is now facing one of the most critical periods in its history.

From Mr. Runyon we have received the following interesting analysis of the Presidential responsibilities and purposes:

By DAMON RUNYON

Copyright 1941, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

NO one ever seems to think of the terrible mental strain under which Mr. Roosevelt must be laboring. No one ever seems to think of the sleepless nights and the disturbing visions that must be his.

We read more words of criticism than of sympathy for him, though it seems to us that he should have the deepest sympathy. You might judge from some of the comment that his critics think he is enjoying himself, when the truth of the matter is he is probably one of the saddest of men.

Mr. Roosevelt is flesh and blood and heart and soul. He is one of the great humanitarians of history. He will be so rated in the years to come. It is inconceivable that a man of his mould would not have tremendous feeling in this hour, one of the most critical ever faced by a Chief Executive of the United States.

It is our guess that he prays nightly that God give him guidance in the decisions he must make and which will affect 130,000,000 Americans.

Mr. Roosevelt is normally a folksy sort of man, though he was born to money, to fine living, and to social position.

He is a man who likes to laugh, who enjoys a good story, who dabbles in stamps and ship models as a hobby, who finds pleasure in putting on old clothes, and going fishing, and who smokes cigarettes by the dozens, and gives his pals odd nicknames, and who loves to see those around him happy and contented.

HE IS STILL ABLE to turn his familiar reassuring and warming smile on his people on occasion, but within him his heart must be as heavy as lead.

It is not in human nature that a normal man could contemplate the dismal prospects of the days ahead without foreboding and sorrow, and Mr. Roosevelt is one of the most complete human documents the world has ever known. If the fellow in the street feels depressed, how must Mr. Roosevelt feel?

We think it cruel and unjust to suggest that Mr. Roosevelt wants to lead his people into war, which is the constant cry of his critics.

Why would he? He knows the horror of war. He has seen the devastated cities and the homeless women and children and the crippled and blind men that result of war. His own sons would be in the fighting line with the sons of his old neighbors and friends and the sons of the little people he loves.

HE HAS MANIFESTED that love time and again. In return the people have given him the greatest distinction ever bestowed upon a man in the history of the Republic.

We think that anyone who believes that Mr. Roosevelt would wantonly betray the confidence of the people is a fool, but too many forget that this confidence imposes upon him certain responsibilities, first and foremost of which is the preservation of our free life.

And with this threatened, as it is, Mr. Roosevelt would be derelict in the oath he took in the name of his Maker to defend the Constitution of the United States did he not take steps to avert the threat, wherever those steps might lead.

He would stand before the bar of history as an incompetent and a traitor to the American ideals and to humanity.

It is strange that his critics cannot see that this greatest of human beings must be suffering in his hour of trial.

WE ARE GOING to have a little bet on Mr. Roosevelt to win the war for Britain without getting us involved in actual hostilities. We admit that this looks like a hard trick to perform but we have seen him accomplish miracles before and this may be another. In any event, we have always found it a good idea to string with the champion until he loses one.

It is said that from the White House he can see the majestic pile raised to the memory of another man whose life was made sorrowful by the burdens placed upon him when he was President and possibly as he views that tribute of a great people to one of its great leaders, Mr. Roosevelt finds comfort and courage in the words of Abraham Lincoln:

"Let us have faith that right makes might; and in that faith let us to the end, dare to do our duty as we understand it."

JUST RECENTLY an apple-cheeked little girl from Boston went up to New York, sat down at a piano in Madison Square Garden, and with the lights lowered and the ice bars of skaters, enthralled 33,000 spectators with the playing of her own composition, an ice-ballet called "Cracked Ice."

The girl was five-foot-one Peggy Stuart who has been writing music ever since she can remember. She is a strange combination; she can figure skate well enough to star in ice carnivals and can play the piano well enough to be in constant demand as a concert artist.

ONE DAY, shortly after her debut, she decided that special music should be written for "dancing on ice." So, before her family had even discovered why she had locked herself in her room, she emerged with what was probably the first ice ballet ever written.

This she promptly called "Cracked Ice" and it was just as promptly seized by the officials of the Boston Skating Carnival who staged it in the Boston Garden. Later it was orchestrated by Ferde Grofe and was even played in August Symphony Hall, where nary a skater can be found, with the "composer" playing the solo parts.

Unpredictable and ever active, Peggy next decided that the Junior League should have an orchestra recruited from its own membership. This was somewhat startling to people who thought of the League as a strictly social organization, which teaches its members to work for charitable causes.

But, while they were still smiling incredulously Peggy had discovered enough musical talent within the League to have a 23-piece orchestra!

And the Boston League is now radiantly proud that it is the only one in the country to have an orchestra of its own.

It is fairly complete, too. There are five first violins, five second violins, one viola, two cellos, two basses, a piano, three flutes, a clarinet and tympani.

Last year it gave six concerts—in settlement houses around Boston, bringing music to people who can't afford to go to Symphony concerts. The last concert of the season was so crowded that the League will probably have to stage next year's concert in a larger hall.

Peggy conducts the orchestra and even writes music for it when the mood is upon her. Knowing the orchestra's possibilities and limitations, she wrote last year a "Conversational Waltz," which shows up the two sections of the orchestra at their best—the strings suggesting the feminine voice in this musical tete-a-tete.

VERY POPULAR with the young crowd, Peggy is held in awe due to her versatility.

Another of her accomplishments is drawing. This week she has a portrait entered in the members' art exhibit at the League which has drawn favorable comment.

When she's tired of music and can't skate, she drags out her paint brush or crayons and can do a creditable portrait. She's just done an oil of her father, handsome Esquire-ish Willoughby Stuart, Jr., who, as yet, has made no pronouncement on its merits.

Asked about her painting—Peggy just laughs and replies that she does it just for her own amazement.

Next Sunday she will be the

PEGGY STUART, TALENTED CAMBRIDGE SOCIALITE

soloist with the Women's Symphony Orchestra, playing her own work, "Smokedrift," which is a fantasy for piano and orchestra.

AN AMUSING experience is connected with Peggy.

Not so long ago, while staging radio programs for a local station, we starred Peggy on one of them.

When she arrived in the studio, the orchids and the telegrams began pouring in and this somewhat impressed one of the new officials (in view of what happened we probably should call him officious) of the station.

So he began to fuss around to make sure that everything was perfect for the broadcast, with the net result that the Baby Grand, at which Peggy was to play, and the "mikes" were moved to what he thought was a better part of the studio.

The workmen called to do the moving showed their disapproval by standing by, entranced, while the official and Peggy's father, who were resplendent in light morning suits, struggled to place the piano where Mr. Official thought it should be.

"Just a little more this way,

Mr. Stuart," the official gasped as these two, who had probably never had to get a drink of water for themselves, tugged at that tremendous piano.

Finally the piano was in place—and the broadcast was on—minus rehearsal, due to the ministrations of our officious friend.

Just as Peggy was about half way through her first composition, the piano began to slide away from her.

As long as we live, we'll never forget the agonized expression on her elfin little face, usually so merry, as she struggled to reach the piano, while it receded farther and farther away from her, with only yours truly (weight: 116 pounds) trying to act as anchor till the broadcast was over.

But Peggy proved herself a real trouper. She managed to keep on playing—we were too dazed to remember how. But afterwards we received letters from listeners telling us they had never heard a better concert, apparently completely unaware of that leaping piano.

Mr. Official, however, who had forgotten to lock it, was told to stop playing with pianos.

MARTIN'S MISTAKE
IRKS SERGEANT

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, April 23—"We were drilling at Ft. Dix and one new private, his first day there spoiled the sergeant's count-off," a draftee reports at the Havana-Madrid. "Our sergeant told him to step out of line and bawled him out: 'Wotsamatter with you? Didn't you ever go to school? Can't you count?' The private was William Martin, who just resigned as president of the New York Stock Exchange."

"Winston Churchill had so much foresight," the Countess of Carnarvon states at the Waldorf's Serf Room, "that as long ago as 1934 he built an air-raid shelter on his estate, 'Chartwell'."

"Gertrude Lawrence phoned Victor Mature at the hospital for permission to auction off his appendix for British War Relief on Monday," a producer informs at Rogers Corner. "Mature asked the hospital, and permission was granted." . . . "My play, 'Rise of the Mongols,' will be produced with a cast of 60," W. H. Jung, captain of waiters, states at the House of Chan. "I invited Dr. Tsune Chi Yu, the consul general, to the opening, and he asked me for the date. When I told him rehearsals hadn't started yet he said: 'Then, I'll accept, on condition that you be my guest at the World Series—if Brooklyn wins the pennant.'"

"If an ASCAP member wins the song contest sponsored by the Commission to Defend America," a song-writer reports at the Mayan, "ASCAP will permit that song to be broadcast."

"A gourmet," dancer Mario Naldi defines at the Gay 90's, "is a man who never gets fed up with eating."

GRETA GARBO

"HARRY RUBY, the song-writer, had his long nose broken many years ago," George Jessel relates at Moore's. "When he was married I went to the wedding and asked the groom: 'How did you propose—on bended nose?'"

At the St. Moritz the Countess Meir de Mandil hears Johnny Howard's rendition of Kipling's "A Young British Soldier" and gives Howard a 10-shilling note. Howard raffles it while Romeo Vincent sings "I Am An American"—and the bill brings $51 for Bundles for Britain. . . . "Nunnally Johnson and Hy Kraft are having a thorough collaboration," a scenarist reports at Toots Shor's. "They're writing a play—and Mrs. Kraft is decorating Johnson's new big house."

"Sidney Solomon, who operated the Central Park Casino," an agent states at Barney Gallant's, "will operate Riley's Arrowhead Inn. Vernon MacFarlane will do the decorations."

"The published version of Moss Hart's 'Lady in the Dark' is dedicated to 'L. S. K.'," a publisher reveals at the Chateau Moderne. "He's Dr. Lawrence S. Kubie, Hart's psychoanalyst."

"You had a bad steer about Jay Sims, our newscaster, not knowing what he was reading—until Raymond Gram Swing told him—when he broadcast the news of Poland's invasion," Jerry Danzig, WOR's publicist, corrects at Sardi's. "Sims, as you should have known, is one of the most able and intelligent newscasters in the country. He wasn't even with WOR when Poland was invaded. He was with CBS in Chicago at the time and so the story couldn't have happened."

At the Beachcomber's, Carmen Amaya dedicates a dance to Raymond Massey, who, with Ruth Gordon, then visits the dancer backstage. "Weren't you in a movie called 'Hurricane'?" Amaya asks Massey. "When he nods the dancer cooed $50 cent bills from her 12 relatives."

"Roy Roberts is joining the cast of 'My Sister Eileen,'" an actor informs at the 48th St. Tavern. "He's replacing Gordon Jones."

"IN CHICAGO we hired an old actor as an understudy for the 13 old 'murdered men' in 'Arsenic and Old Lace,' who appear for bows after the play is over," coproducer Russel Crouse reports at the Barbary Room. "The first night I noticed 14 old men were taking the bow and only 13 are referred to in the play. The old understudy was so stage-struck that he couldn't resist the urge to appear onstage for a bow. No, we didn't fire him. He still has the job—but we keep him locked downstairs until he's needed."

"Joan Crawford went to her hair-dresser's and answered the phone there, posing as his secretary," an MGM official relates at the 19 Club. "She said: 'Tell me who's calling. My boss is an important man.' The caller said: 'This is Greta Garbo.' Unbelieving, Joan said: 'And this is Joan Crawford.' They both didn't believe it—and they both were telling the truth."

ON the SIDE

by
E. V. BURLING

I AM just learning some things I should have known years ago. For instance, the reason a wedding ring is used. It is because a circle is endless and the ring symbolizes a wish the wedding will result in a life-long union. Maybe when women get a divorce they should have a piece cut out of their wedding ring to symbolize the hope of their wedding day was not fulfilled. . . . In California, a woman 75 years old was recently married to a man the same age. Was the first wedding for both. When a woman reaches 70, the odds are 10,000 to 1 she will not be married. Between 20 and 25 the odds are two to one. Between 30 and 35, six to one. Between 35 and 40, 25 to 1. Forty to 45 is 40 to 1. Forty-five to 50, 200 to 1. Fifty and 50 is 450 to 1. So, ma'am if you are not married you will now know whether you are a favorite or a long shot in the matrimonial handicap.

QUERIES: Q—Did you find out what a drindil was? Such ignorance. I'll bet you don't even know what a midriff is? A—I found out what a drindil is. And I know what a midriff is too. And I think midriff is a better name for it than "midny." I can understand why women want to keep looking and thinking young but when they indulge in hole talk it seems to be carrying the idea too far. Q In what play was spoken the line: "Come on! Remorse! A I would say, sir, that it was in "Checkers," by Henry Blossom. Jr. Remorse was the name of a horse and the hero of the play was rooting for the animal to win as he, the hero, had his last 50 smackers on said animal's nose.

CONFIDENTIAL: A London marriage bureau has more than 20,000 persons registered who have paid a fee equivalent to $20 each. When a mate is secured for a registrant an additional fee of $8 is required. Boy, there's a business for you. . . . "Cocktails Fifteen Cents" is sign noted in the downtown section. That's too much of a bargain. Fifteen cents is not enough for a cocktail no more than five cents is enough for a glass of whiskey. . . . A person of Japanese descent born in this country is an American citizen. But Japan claims these people are Japanese citizens. Such a claim is a type of Fifth Column activity. The U. S. government should cut loose with a sharp rebuke to the Japanese on this matter.

ASIDES: A monument to the forward pass is to be erected in South Bend, Ind., according to an announcement. Nothing is said of the man responsible for introducing the forward pass into American football. Shouldn't he have a monument? The forward pass improved the game but the "huddle" is ruining it. Who started that "huddle"? Probably some fellow whose wind was bad. . . . Even in almanacs an encyclopaedia we find misinformation. One almanac detailing the "length of the power of reproduction" in animals states the horses' limit is 15 years of age. Man O' War is an active sire at 24. Same almanac says cats' reproductive limit is ten years of age. A 28-year-old cat in Chicago recently had kittens.

MY DAY

By Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

CHICAGO, Tuesday—The sun shone when we reached Peoria, Ill., yesterday. After a press conference, I went out to see one of the housing projects built under the U. S. Housing Authority. Everyone with whom I talked, had the highest praise for Mr. Nathan Straus and the work which has been accomplished under his leadership. The particular project which I saw was practically completed, except for the landscaping.

There are two types of buildings, three-story apartment houses and two-story small houses. The rents are remarkably reasonable, far below the average for sub-standard housing in Peoria. I am sure all the officials are very pleased with what has been accomplished.

Later, I met the staff of the WPA for the district. I was very much interested to hear an account of the workers' service project, which has been operating during the past two months. They have set up centers of information for the workers, and they seem to have been able to make these centers very useful in the short time they have been open.

A number of the British relief people, among them two small girls dressed in Scotch kilts, came at 5 o'clock to shake hands with me. I was glad to see Mrs. Johnson, who remembered having entertained the President and me in the 1920 campaign.

After the lecture in the evening, I attended a small reception. We boarded the train a little before midnight, arriving in Chicago early this morning. The sun is shining and we look out of our windows at a very calm lake with ships passing in the distance. I always enjoy this view and the sight of the gardens and the trees along the drive with the incessant stream of cars going past.

There is no green on the trees yet, and no flowers are in sight but there is a feel of spring in the air.

Hollywood Today

SHIRLEY TEMPLE
IN COMEBACK

By Louella O. Parsons

Shirley Temple

HOLLYWOOD, April 23 The golden-haired Shirley Temple stars in "Kathleen" and then she is through at M-G-M. The reason given is that her deal was only for two pictures. She was sick and unable to appear opposite Wallace Beery in "Barnacle Bill," but nevertheless it was counted as one of her pictures.

"Kathleen" is the other. Interesting that Shirley now does "Kathleen," the Kay Van Hiper story, a little girl whose mother dies at childbirth and whose father is fighting against the child instead of "Barnacle Bill" with Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland, one of the movies is quickly abandoned.

Personally I think Metro is in a spot. I think it is because Shirley is a little bit of a trouble maker and they have so many grown-up stars that they feel it is not practical to spend a million dollars on her pictures. Mrs. Temple was not particularly excited over "Barnacle Bill," although both Jackie Cooper and Mickey Rooney did right in a Beery movie. Tempie is Shirley's 12th birthday and she'll spend it very quietly because of her illness and not with the fanfare that used to attend her birthday parties every 23rd of April when she was a 20th Century-Fox star.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: Marlene Dietrich and Joan Garba have found each other; Frances Robinson, who was once Bob Hoskins' favorite dinner partner, talking things over with Conrad Nagel at the House of Marmite; Warners had just as soon Priscilla Lane didn't marry John Barry, Victorville editor, because they have important career plans for her; Harry Ham, who has been representing Myron Selznick in London, telling his views of the present war. He was a dinner guest of Vera Black, Sylvia Fairbanks' sister; Paul Yawitz, well known newspaperman, and now doing a writing job here, was another guest I enjoyed meeting; Robert Montgomery heads east to his farm for the summer when he finishes at Columbia; Cole Porter, has written seven swell tunes for the Fred Astaire picture; Stirling Hayden with his real heart, Kay Aldridge, on a yachting trip with Bill Holden and Brenda Marshall; Mrs. Arthur Minnich denies that she has any intention of marrying Geza Herczeg when he is free; Mickey Black, Hollywood attorney, will be out of the Cedars of Lebanon Hospital in time to celebrate his wife's birthday on the 29th; he has been critically ill; Jack Dempsey at the Pirates Den in a party with the Fred MacMurray; Andrea Leeds hosted a surprise gathering at Mike Romanoff's for her husband, Bob Howard.

TEXAS GUINAN, the world's greatest exponent of night club hostessing, will live again in the movies. Buddy de Sylva has bought the story of her life from her heirs and has acquired fourteen scrap books telling every phase of her career from the time she was a movie star doing Wild West shows, up to the moment when she was the queen of the night clubs in New York and discovered Ruby Keeler and other talented girls. Texas used to say "give the little girl a hand" and "hello sucker" and her great charm was that she never failed to visit various tables and give a personal greeting to her guests. Now there is the question of finding a "Texas." Who is there who could play the part for Paramount? Bunnie Barnes could do it I know—or Ann Sothern!

TILLIE IS ALL SET to toll before the cameras. In other words, "Tillie, the Toller" is finally cast. Kay Harris, of course, is Tillie—Daphne Pollard comes out of a long retirement to play "Mummy." William Tracy is the befuddled Mac with the lock down the middle of his forehead and Jack Arnold (of Myrt and Marge fame) will be Whipple.

LOUELLA PARSONS, famed internationally-circulated Hearst motion picture columnist, will be heard locally over Station WEEI every Friday between 10 and 10:30 p. m.

Smart Set Functions

By BETTY ALDEN

DON'T LET anyone tell you that women are not intelligent voters . . . the claims of masculine politicians notwithstanding! . . .

Yesterday afternoon members of the Junior League sat down at their luncheon and business meeting, at which the annual election of officers is held, and carried on the old Junior League tradition of electing as president the girl who is best fitted and most capable to fill the job . . .

Like her predecessors, Dorothy Rackemann, who was chosen as chief executive for the coming season, has had an extensive career in executive and charity work during the four years since her debut . . .

Descended from a long line of conservative and distinguished New Englanders, Dottie is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Francis Rackemann whose lovely old Beacon st. home, filled with books, Oriental rugs and gems of antique furniture, provides a stimulating background for Dottie's interest in cultural and artistic accomplishments . . .

Ever since she made her debut at The Country Club in December, 1936, Dottie has devoted her time to activities which have helped develop her executive ability . . . Every summer she has been right hand man in organizing and running the week of summer sports on the Cape to raise funds for the Children's Hospital . . . She has been a Red Cross hospital aide, an active and willing worker for Community Fund campaigns, and more recently publicity director of the Vincent Club and third vice-president of the Junior League . . .

NEWEST MEMBERS of the Junior League executive staff are Patricia Spencer of West Newton, first vice-president, and Ruth Brewer of Hingham, assistant treasurer, who were elected yesterday at the annual meeting and luncheon at the League on Marlborough st.

A New Figure for Spring

Registered U. S. Patent Office

By IDA JEAN KAIN

As long as fashion continues to follow the line of the figure so closely, the girl with the scanty bust contour will be keenly interested in any measure which promises lovelier curves.

The well-designed brassiere can do a lot. But it can't solve the problem of underdevelopment of the chest, and that is often the main trouble. When the chest is filled out, this portion of the figure takes on a better contour. Sometimes the line is spoiled by a hollow between the shoulder and the bust.

The muscle tissue can be toned and the hollow filled out with this type of exercise:

Lie on the back on the bed with head and arms dangling over the edge. Very slowly raise the arms upward and lift the upper part of the body until the entire figure is in a straight line. At the same time, tip the head backward and chew vigorously to increase the muscular pull on the network across the chest and bust and particularly on the strands from the throat to the breasts. Begin easily and gradually increase the number of times you repeat the exercise.

FOR GOOD POSTURE

Here is another good exercise for figure and posture: Stand with feet apart and parallel, hands down at the sides. Bend the hands back at the wrists so that the palms are turned up and fingers point back. Then, very slowly, raise both arms up in front of the body until they are stretched high overhead without hunching the shoulders. Pause for an instant, straighten the hands and turn them out at the sides, and lower the arms sideward and down.

Do this exercise very slowly and concentrate all the effort in those upper arm muscles.

It may be that your flat-chested appearance is caused by underweight. To have a well-proportioned figure, the weight must be normal and you may have to go on a diet to gain. The specific dietary measures which seem to be most helpful in this respect are an increased quantity of milk and the inclusion of a vitamin A and D concentrate. Both the milk and the extra vitamins are stressed in a weight gaining diet.

HELPING HER GUIDE the reins of the League will be Patty Spencer of West Newton, first vice-president; Mrs. Robert Hatch of Cambridge, second vice-president; Mrs. John F. Enders, treasurer; Ruth Brewer, assistant treasurer, and Ellen Bottomley, secretary . . .

Dodie wore a navy dress trimmed with powder blue revers, as she received the congratulations of her friends after luncheon . . . Her mother, beaming with justifiable pride, wore a modish spring print with a large flower trimmed straw hat, and modestly declined to share the spotlight with her daughter by refusing to have her picture made by the news photographers . . .

Among the many luncheon guests were Alice Hunsaker, dressed for an afternoon session on the tennis courts, in sneakers and socks and a striped cotton sport dress . . . Mary Remick, proclaiming her allegiance to the good ship Remick by the gold lettering on her regulation sailor hat . . . the soon-to-be-married Katharine Cunningham Gray sporting the beautiful square cut emerald engagement ring which she received last week-end from Rutherford Bingham of New York . . . Mrs. Frank Grebe in a navy ensemble with a navy and white print dress and tricky little white hat tied under her chin and blue veiling . . . Mrs. Frederick Blodgett in a modish black and white outfit . . . Jean Clark who was dropped off at the League by her mother, in a chauffeur driven limousine . . . Betsy Ayer, bedecked with a brilliant corsage on her tailored gray suit . . . Mrs. Robert Meyer (Louise Fry) who attended with Lucy Pope . . . Mrs. Anson Erickl with Mimi Little . . .

You Can Be Beautiful

Yes, You Are Photogenic!

By ARLINE GOULD

HOW DO you know you're not photogenic? Just because you have to be at least ten feet from the camera to get a snap that looks human? You haven't realized that lighting and make-up have done fifty per cent of the work in creating one of those devastating Hurrell or Steichen shots (with a bow toward their photographic genius which accounts for another 100 per cent!) . . . or if you have figured that make-up might play quite an important part . . . there wasn't anything you could do about it!

That was before the arrival of a swell little kit, a red, black and silver box labeled "How to Make-up for all Black and White Photography" . . . consisting of a rather complete panchromatic make-up outfit . . . and a marvelous booklet showing you how to counteract such photographic hazards as receding chins, long noses, deep set eyes . . . and so on, and so on! It's only $1.49.

We're told that it employs the basic theory of application of "highlights and shadows," which portrait painters have been using for centuries. One of the medium shades is used as an over-all foundation, blended in with the fingertips and smoothed right down to the neckline. A lighter shade is used for highlighting and a darker shade for shadow.

Lips are a feature that most often photograph poorly and often spoil the picture. This is due, we're told, to the fact that the various shades of lipsticks photograph uncertainly. The brownish shade included in the kit photographs with a lovely, soft effect.

You'll be popular with your camera fan friends when you have this kit (and you won't shudder at the idea of getting before a professional or an amateur or a candid camera).

In it are five photographic shades of complexion foundation, three shades of powder, panchromatic lip rouge, eye brow pencil, eye shadow, lip brush and powder puff. And the booklet! If you'd like to know all about this remarkable new photographic make-up kit, phone Arline Gould, LIBERTY 4000, weekdays except Saturdays, or write, care of the Boston Evening American, including a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

WITH THIS little magic stick . . . of creamy, tinted foundation . . . you can begin the panchromatic make-up which will give you a gloriously photogenic face . . . glossing over faults, emphasizing good features . . . so you can come close to being as glamorous as a photographic model! For amateur or professional picture-taking there is a new make-up kit which Arline Gould describes today.

Spring Appetites Here!

By MARTHA LEE

NOW THAT it's spring and the days are warming up, appetites are on the wane and menus need a change of pace. Good, hearty foods may be replaced gradually with nourishing dishes that give an illusion of lightness. Salad luncheons are perfect for the balmy days of spring, and here's a suggestion for a luncheon that is guaranteed to tempt all spring fever victims—a steaming cup of cream soup, a generous serving of fruit salad, with a toasted cheese sandwich and quantities of hot tea.

CREAM OF SPINACH SOUP

Put 1 1/2 cups of raw spinach through a food chopper, using fine blade; add to one recipe thin white sauce with 1 cup hot water. Season with 1/2 teaspoon of salt and 1/2 teaspoon of celery salt. Cook 5 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

THIN WHITE SAUCE

2 tbsp. butter
2 tsp. flour
3 cups milk
1/2 tsp. salt
Melt butter, add flour and blend. Add milk and salt; cook with steady task, stirring constantly. This combination of prunes, carrots, egg yolks and peanuts in the dressing is a most delicious high protein meal. You'll like the flavor, the softness and the contrasting texture of this Prune Salad.

PRUNE SALAD

1 cup chopped prunes
2 cups sliced carrots
1/2 cup egg yolks
1/2 cup chopped peanuts
1 cup cooked salad dressing
Wash prunes and soak over night in just enough water to cover. Prunes should be tender enough to pull apart. If not, stew gently until tender. Toss prunes together lightly with the carrots, orange and peanuts and enough salad dressing to moisten. Serve on lettuce. Makes 6 servings.

COOKED SALAD DRESSING

2 tbsp. sugar
1 tsp. salt
2 tsp. flour
1 tsp. dry mustard
Few grains cayenne
2 egg yolks, slightly beaten
1/2 cup milk
1/4 cup mild vinegar
1 tsp. butter
Mix dry ingredients, add egg yolks and milk, cook in double boiler until thick, stirring constantly. Add vinegar and butter; Cook. Makes 1 1/2 cups.

A lower calorie version necessary to complete this luncheon—but it can't be done! A fruit salad is as good as a dessert, perhaps, a few cookies.

Name Blondie's Baby —and win $100

Blondie and Dagwood (including Baby Dump-ling) have tried awfully hard to find a suitable name for the new baby girl.

But they just can't agree.

Will you help? Just think of a name, write it down on a postcard or a piece of paper and mail it, with a short sentence why you think it's the right name for her. If your name is chosen by the four judges—Chic Young, Beatrice Fairfax, Inez Robb and Dr. A. R. Dafoe, doctor of the famous Quintuplets, you will receive $100.

It's Easy! It's Fun! You Can WIN!
it costs you nothing

HERE ARE THE SIMPLE RULES. READ THEM CAREFULLY, PLEASE

- (1)—Print or write plainly on a piece of paper your choice of a name for Blondie's baby daughter, and complete this sentence, "I think this name is suitable for the baby because . . . ." The sentence should contain not more than 25 words.
- (2)—Do not enter more than one name and one sentence in this contest.
- (3)—To be eligible entries must be mailed before midnight, Wednesday, April 30, 1947, to Boston American, P. O. Box 6, Grand Central Annex, New York City.
- (4)—Neatness, suitability and

- (5)—Any resident of the United States or Canada may compete, with the exception of employees of this paper or members of their families.
- (6)—The prize will be awarded as soon after April 30th as the judging has been finished. Duplicate prizes will be awarded in case of ties. The decision of the judges is final. The judges are Chic Young, Beatrice Fairfax, Inez Robb and Dr. A. R. Dafoe.

AFTER 35 SERUTAN

SUE WAS a charming girl, but girls didn't interest Linton Shepherd much, and dogs did. He ate his breakfast at the table nearest the window. This bulldog was already a friend of his, though neither the dog nor the girl knew it. He lavished friendship on the dog through the window, but the girl was just the girl who went with the dog.

So that when, one morning, he saw through the window another dog dancing around the great old bulldog with feckless gestures, it was the bulldog he went out to help and not the girl.

"Listen, son," he said to the small boy the other dog was dragging about, "let's take him around the corner, are?" and suited the action to the word.

When he got back, "Golly, but I'm grateful," the girl said. "This old fellow wouldn't attack any living creature, but if another dog attacks him—"

"I know. I used to have one." Lin squatted down. "You didn't know I was a friend of yours, did you? What's your name?"

The dog sidled and snorted and sniffed away down in his throat.

"Big Mouth," the girl said. "Boca Grande." Lin rose and they walked along together. "He's the friendliest old thing in the world, and now he has to spend all his days alone—except when the janitor takes him out—while I'm busy uptown."

"He's stiffer than usual, isn't he?" "Yes. He needs more exercise than I have time to give him. This morning I'm late and have to cut it shorter than usual. It's a shame."

"Look—I've seen you with the Latrobe Carrolls, back there at No. 39. Well, I know them too. My name's Linton Shepherd, and I'm a very reputable person, and not in the least flirtatious, and anybody round here will tell you I don't steal dogs. Why not?"

"You are nice! My name's Jean Armstrong. Do you mean you'd take him on around the square, or somewhere?"

"And deliver him to the janitor of your apartment house. Where is it?"

"Did Boca tell you," he said when they met the next morning in the same block, "that he spent the day with me yesterday?"

"No, he didn't say a word about it, but I haven't seen him look so chipper for ever so long."

"I don't think he likes your janitor. He pulled at the leash when I handed it over to him, and whined, and—Well, I went back and got him. We had a good day together, didn't we?"

AN INVITATION

Boca snickered in close and wheezed and snorted and sniffed.

"You know, I've got an apartment that runs all the way through the building, and there's nobody there but me, and I like dogs—especially Boca. I've got a funny kind of occupation—I'm an inventor. I do all my work at home. So any time the old boy wants to come, he's welcome."

The Cast of Characters in "And a Dog"

JEAN, who owns BOCA, a dog, and dislikes an attorney who is looking after her inheritance. LINTON, an inventor, who likes Boca and might learn to like Jean.

"And a Dog"

By Alma and Paul Ellerbe

Which was a proposition he'd never have made if he hadn't been sure of his ability to keep things cool, platonic.

"You see," he explained a few days later when she had dropped in to take the old dog home, "I am married, and therefore quite safe for any girl."

She cast an eye about the bare, mannish place.

"You don't look married."

"I'm married to my job. Have to be to see the thing through. There's no place in my scheme of things for a wife, and won't be for five years yet."

"It won't do you the least bit of good if you fall in love. So—she gave him a nice boyish grin—"let's don't."

She delighted him. She was like the tea they took to having together when she came—mild, restorative, but nothing a fellow couldn't forgo.

"It was dull at home," she said—home was the Middle West—"and I came on here now because I could and later I mightn't have been able to. Life is fixed at home, foreordained, easy. I took a job here—I'm a good secretary—because I want to know what the reality of a working life is like. I'm going to have a spot of money some day and be planted out there like a tree or something for keeps."

THE EXECUTOR

And so Mr. Linton Shepherd, concentrated on how to perfect a new kind of self-refrigerating truck that was going to make him rich, suddenly found himself encumbered with a dog and a girl, and liking it. Forewarned, he thought comfortably, is forearmed; she wants a love-interest in this mild chapter of our lives as little as I do. For she had told him so.

"I was crazily in love with a kid back home who was the particular kind of poison I needed to destroy my life completely. He was killed in his car one night when he was drunk, and I'm still working my way out of what it did to me."

And so they jogged along... until the letter came from Bryce Harding.

"Bryce Harding," she said, "is my stepmother's cousin. He's coming to New York. He's never seen anything but his own point of view. You see, he wants to marry me, and—"

"Couldn't you just say No to him and send him away?"

"I could say No to him, as usual, but—as usual—he wouldn't go away. And all my money's in his hands. It's coming to me from my stepmother's estate. He's the executor. There are large blocks of it that can be retrieved only by an expert, and he's it. He thinks I've always been in love with him and am just putting on an act. He's managed to get everything else he ever wanted. I've got to write him a letter that will prevent his coming here to see me and that won't antagonize him."

"Why don't you write him that you're engaged to be married—to me, unless you can think of somebody better? And we'll be engaged until he goes away, and break it now, as of the date of his departure."

And he got up and fouled her another cup of tea.

"You sure you mean it just—well, just as it sounds? It couldn't make a situation for either of us any way, could it?"

"It might for some people, but not for us—we've got too much sense."

And the next day, thinking it over, "Boca," he said, "she's a nice girl—either to be owned by, as you are, or just as a friend."

He wriggled a finger under Boca's big black wrinkling nose, and Boca said he thought so too.

And then one afternoon Bryce Harding presented himself at his door.

"Why, Boca," Lin said when he opened the door, "what's the matter with you?"

"He doesn't like me," Harding said. "It's mutual. My name is Bryce Harding."

"Well," Lin said.

Bryce Harding had a voice like a certain kind of radio announcer—it had a staccato on it. He filled the room. He would have filled any room.

"Let's not waste words, Mr. Shepherd. I've come on sooner than Jean expected, to see you first, and lay my cards on the table. After which I'm going to ask to see yours, though I've had you looked up in advance and know all about you. Jean has told you that I've always expected to marry her."

Lin stood tall and loose and easy-jointed, like a clear bottle full of cool water, when this began, but heat rose in him swiftly and his eyes grew bright and sharp.

"Yes. But she has not expected to marry you—recently, a long time ago, or ever."

"She doesn't know her own mind. Now look: I have an income of $31,000 a year, with excellent prospects for more. I have

WOMEN WANTED

38 to 52 years old. Women who are cross, restless, NERVOUS—who suffer from flat faces, dimples—caused by this period in a woman's life—to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Pinkham's is famous for relieving distressing symptoms due to this functional disturbance. WORTH TRYING!

about $400,000 in bank. I belong to the best clubs in New York city, and to three golf courses in New York. I have everything to offer, that a girl of her kind could want, and—"

"Mr. Harding," Lin said, "you are in love with Jean?"

"Yes. Yes, of course. I'm in love with her."

"That's odd, since you don't know her. You see, in mention of the things you have to offer, you haven't mentioned anything she wants."

"The things I've got are the things every woman's got to have if she's going to have a fully happy American standard-of-living life. And now may I ask what you have to offer a girl who has been used to—well, to luxury, that you are willing to—well, to deprive her of the things I have mentioned, especially since her estate is of value only when administered by someone like myself?"

And that's where the clear bottle full of cool water boiled over.

"I've got life to offer her," Lin said, moved in a fashion he hadn't expected. "companionship, and something you don't know anything about. You used the word but it's clear you haven't experienced the thing itself. What I refer to, Mr. Harding, is the funny old outmoded article of love. You see, I happen to love her." (And he realized, as his heart turned over in his breast, it's true!)

"Just how much I didn't realize until I saw what it would be like for her to marry a man like you, who doesn't believe in love, and who would try to keep her happy with 'things.' Frankly, I didn't realize how much I had to offer until you came. And now, since more words couldn't possibly help, would you mind going away?"

Bryce alighted departed with a full-flavored speech, and Lin closed the door behind him.

"Well," Jean said, as he turned. "Now you've done it! And so has he! And so have I! I saw him turn in here and I came up the backstairs, to—she said unabashedly—"Listen. Where do we go from here?"

"They stood a moment at each other for a long, important moment."

"We could go right spang into love!" — Did you know I loved you? I didn't."

"Yes—when it started, I found out right in the middle of it. But why?"

"Yes, I thought you were never going to."

"You mean you—?"

"Yes, she said gently. 'Almost as long as Boca has.'"

"Well, Lin said after a while, 'your money's gone.'"

"Maybe. What good did it do me?"

"Don't look down on money, money's the reason I could talk so tall. I've got some. I've sold the refrigerated truck patent, on a twenty basis."

He handed her the letter that had come that morning.

"Two thousand a month?"

"To begin with, I can afford a wife on that—and," he added as Boca rubbed up against his legs, "and a dog."

Nats' Coach Tells How to 'Steal' Bases

By HERB FINNEGAN

NEW YORK, April 23—Clyde Milan is the third base coach with the Washington Senators. Clyde has always been with the Senators. He was their ace outfielder from 1907 to 1922. He was the league's base-stealing champion in 1912 with 88 and in 1913 with 74.

Milan, Ty Cobb and Eddie Collins were contemporaries. All three were base-stealers par excellence.

Milan broke Cobb's A. L. record in 1912. Cobb came back in 1915 to steal 96 bases, a modern record which never will be surpassed until baseball is played differently than it is today.

Base-running, not particularly base-stealing, has always been Milan's forte and hobby. Even today he is always pounding it into the Washington players to go for that extra base.

"Base-stealing," Milan opened as we sat down on a trunk in the Nats' locker room, "isn't the run-producing factor it was in the day of the dead ball. But there are plenty of times today when one run decides a ball game, and a stolen base often will help you get that run. But how many players are there who can steal that base for you when you need it?"

Milan puffed on a cigarette and read the past through the blue haze.

"I could have stolen 100 bases easily in 1912," he reminisced, "but Griff (owner Clark Griffith was then manager) would never let me run when the club was out in front, or even if we were two runs behind. That was percentage, of course."

"It wasn't until mid-season when he saw I had a chance to break Cobb's record that he gave me the green-light. Then I really stepped on it."

Was speed alone essential to base-stealing success? If so, why were he, Cobb and Collins standouts in a league which seemed to be reeking with fast men?

"No indeed," he answered, "it takes more than speed to be a top-notch base-stealer. George Sieler, Jimmy Austin and Chick Shorten were all fast, but either they could only slide one way or they didn't study the pitchers like the rest of us."

"There are three essentials to base-stealing success, and if a fellow lacks one of them he's a dead goose. He must (1) judge to the exact inch just how far he can take his lead off first without being caught; (2) be at top speed after he takes his first step, and (3) be able to slide either way."

"I used to study the pitchers closely. I'd watch their feet, their knees, their shoulders, their head. Sometimes I could tell by their feet or knees whether they were going to throw to first or the plate, but most of the time they'd give it away in their head or shoulders."

Milan warmed up to the subject closest to his heart.

"I used to bluff a steal on every pitch," he went on. "Sometimes when I had no intention of going, I'd see I had the pitcher, and off I went. I suppose it's instinct because few of us had it."

"I'd be in full gear after that first step, and I'd keep going at top speed all the way. I'd watch for the hands of the man taking the ball at second. He wouldn't have time to fake. If the throw was high, his hands would be high. If the throw was on one side of the bag, his hands would move there automatically. I'd keep my eyes on those hands and slide away from them."

In this slugging era, the boys didn't specialize in taking a long lead off first base.

"No," said Milan, "but they should. Every time I see a pitcher

TERRY'S SURPRISE TEAM HERE FOR BEES SERIES

By JOE CASHMAN

That Terrible Terry man is in town today and in high humor. His joy is triple-edged.

His New York Giants (6-2) are leading the National League. Four of their wins have been at the expense of their arch-enemies, the Dodgers, and the scribes are red-faced about it.

You're just to winning any ball game, there's nothing the Terrible Terry man enjoys more than licking the Dodgers (the Brooklyn still in the league?) unless it be an opportunity to give the writing fraternity the Bronx cheer.

So the sun was shining brightly for Memphis Will when he pulled into the Pack Hay station with his press-sheets this morning.

Many were the grocodile tears dropped shed over the Giants' plight in the Scotland this spring.

CLASSED WITH PHILLIES

The critics agreed that here was the weakest Bronx battalion in almost half a century.

If it weren't for the Phillies, the prognosticators guessed, with relish the Giants couldn't miss finishing in the cellar.

What's more, the prophets continued, the once best drawing card in the scenic circuit would go bankrupt if it had to rely on the support it was commanded from New York fandom.

What did the Terrible Terry man have to say about these predictions?

Just two words:

"I agree."

Maybe he was sincere. Possibly he was trying a little psychology.

Anyway, the Giants have been amazing everybody else, if not themselves, ever since the bell rang.

They opened up in pennant-mad Brooklyn. They won three straight and Flatbush is still in mourning.

DRAWN $6,000 FANS

They next moved into their historic Polo Grounds to knock off the Phils twice and run their string of straight victories to five.

They didn't do quite so well athletically in their most recent series with the Dodgers up in Harlem, losing two out of three.

But how they thrived financially. They attracted a mere $6,000 cash customers to the three games, including a Sunday gathering which was the largest in Polo Grounds' history.

In other words, the scribes thus far, have been wrong in every guess about the Terrible Terry man and his diamond charges.

The chances are the Giants aren't as classy as they have looked up to now.

It will be a minor upset if they finish in the money; a major

Ruth Accepts Golf Challenge Of Ty Cobb

NEW YORK, April 23 (INS)—Babe Ruth has accepted a challenge from Ty Cobb for a golf match, and stipulates only that the encounter take place on a course in this vicinity not sooner than six weeks hence, Freddy Corcoran, tournament manager for the U. S. A., announced today.

Corcoran is attempted to bring the two former baseball stars together for the British War Relief Fund, and now is awaiting word from Cobb as to whether he will be able to come East from his home near Los Angeles to meet the challenge. Original plans called for three matches, one here and the others at Boston and Detroit, but Ruth has declined to play outside New York, Corcoran said.

CRONN, WILLIAMS, FOX TO MISS TWO-GAME SERIES WITH YANKEES

By HERB FINNEGAN

NEW YORK, April 23—Ill luck, like bananas, comes in bunches, and the Red Sox, unlike the Greek famed in song, had plenty of bananas today as they opened a two-game series with the Yankees here.

First, Manager Joe Cronin, who has been hitting the ball at a .444 clip, will be out of the lineup a couple of days at least, mayhap longer, with a sore throwing arm.

Second, Pete Fox, who has been playing a bang-up game in left field, went straight through to Boston to have his ulcerated tooth extracted.

Third, Ted Williams' injured right ankle didn't stand up under its first test in Washington, and further rest was prescribed for him. Not very cheering news, considering the Sox have dropped their last two games after winning the first five.

But one pleasant note was sounded amidst the gloom bells when it was announced that Frankie Pytlak's injured index finger on his throwing hand had healed sufficiently to enable him to catch Charlie Wagner in today's opener with the Yankees.

NEWSOME AT SHORT

Cronin has been suffering from arm trouble all spring, yet, nobody knew about it until he withdrew from the lineup in the sixth inning of the final game in Washington which the Sox dropped by a 12-5 margin. Strangely, it is the first time arm Cronin has had since he started his professional career back in 1925.

"It hurt all the time we were in Havana," he confessed this morning, "but I stayed in there, figuring it would come around. I was getting along all right, until we played Washington in Boston last week. I went over second base after a ground ball, and gave it an underhand flip to first.

JOE CRONIN

"That ruined it completely. It's been like a toothache since. Yesterday, when I fielded Cramer's ground ball in back of Tabor, I nearly wrenched the arm off trying to get the ball to Fox, and I didn't have enough power to get it over there. It kept aching, so later on I put Skeeter Newsome in, and he'll stay in for the next couple of days. No use killing myself now when there are 147 games left to play."

Joe's soreness is in the ulnar bone, in the fleshy part of his arm under the elbow. It is a strange place for an infielder's arm to hurt, making one wonder if the injury isn't more serious than he believes. Joe had Doctor Edward Larkin, Washington club physician, examine the arm, and Dr. Larkin recommended him to rest it until he could see his own physician, Dr. Tommy Richards, in Boston.

DEFENSIVE BEARCAT

Joe's hitting will be missed. He and Bobby Doerr played a major part in the first five games the Sox won. Joe has made 12 hits in 27 times at bat, three of them homers and three doubles, and has driven in 11 runs.

Skeeter Newsome, a defensive bearcat, cannot approximate Cronin at the plate. Skeeter hit only 277 at Baltimore last year, but he'll field with Eddie Miller or any other shortstop in the game.

Pete Fox, too, was instrumental in the first five Sox victories. A veteran of the 1934-35 World Series with the Tigers, Pete is a smart base runner, working so effectively with Dom DiMaggio that he had the young Washington pitchers frantic. He should be able to play against the A's in Boston Friday, however.

Williams' ankle hurt is still a mystery. He can walk without the trace of a limp and can hit without feeling any pain. But he can't get a jump on the ball in the outfield. He let a blooper from Cramer drop in front of him in Washington which he ordinarily would stick in his back pocket. And once when he lined a ball into the deep right field corner of Griffith Stadium, an apparent triple, he limped to first and stopped there.

SPENCE CAN FILL BILL

Cronin was hoping he could use Ted against the Yankees, whose right field fence is very inviting to a left-handed batter, but will not use him until Ted can move faster.

Stan Spence should fill the bill very acceptably, however. The chunky little left-hander made a fine running one-handed catch of Lewis' pop near the foul line yesterday and almost caught the fleet George Washington Case at home with a rifle throw. He can hit the ball, too, as Paul Derringer will attest, because he hit Derringer easily as he did the rest of the Reds pitchers on the way north this spring.

Frankie Pytlak batted for Woody Rich in Washington, and said he could grip the bat firmly. His throwing in infield practice the past two days has been acceptable, so back he went in today.

Mickey Harris off whom seven runs were scored in three innings yesterday, "had good stuff," Cronin said. "Poor fielding hurt Mickey," Joe added. And it certainly did. If the club had been on its toes, only one run would have been tallied on Harris, whose curve ball really was snapping.

STAR-DUST

By The Associated Press
Dick Siebert, Athletics—Singled with bases loaded in ninth to beat Yankees.

Bill Dietrich, White Sox—Held Tigers to two safeties and had no-bitter until one was out in ninth. John Vander Meer, Reds—Struck out 12 and allowed only four hits in beating Cubs, 1-0.

Dolph Camilli, Dodgers—Hit home run and single to drive in five runs against Giants.

Walter Masterson, Senators—Held Red Sox to eight hits and scores after second inning.

Terry Moore and Enos Slaughter, Cardinals—Their hits in 12th inning brought victory over Pirates.

Tom Hughes, Phillies—Backed up good relief pitchers by hitting single and scoring deciding run in 14th inning against Bees.

Elden Auker, Browns—Stopped Indians with eight hits and was especially effective with runners on base.

Jack Conway Says:

'INSIDE' STORY ON BEES' DEAL FOR $500,000

IF THE BEES become a baseball and financial success Joe Conway, who incidentally isn't even a thirty-third degree cousin, will probably permit me to be his guest at the local World's Series games, but if the club doesn't click under its new setup I do not believe my friend of 25 years' standing will even consider talking to me. I would rather have Joe Conway tell the story, and I believe that after you read it you will understand my hazardous future with my namesake. Take it away, Joe:

BOB QUINN

"While I was sitting on a stool peacefully eating my sandwich Jack Conway came into the place and sat down next to me. It was during the football season, and the discussion turned to professional football. I mentioned to Jack that I was still considering trying to purchase a National League professional football franchise in Boston.

"Why not buy the Bees?" suggested Jack. "It is the best buy in baseball. For a bit under $500,000 you can get the club. The players alone are worth close to $350,000. You could get $100,000 for Eddie Miller."

(Editor's note. Last Winter the Cubs offered $135,000 for Miller and were turned down by Bob Quinn.)

"We then talked about the Bees for almost an hour, and as we parted I declared I would try to organize a syndicate. I was insistent at the time that Bob Quinn would have to continue to head the club if I was able to get a combination of sportsmen together who could furnish the cash.

"I met with a few obstacles, but finally closed the big deal. I think our syndicate will give 100 per cent support to Bob Quinn, and that we have a club that is going places."

YOU CAN NOW see how I am very much on the spot. When you help talk a man into organizing a syndicate for a $500,000 purchase you have assumed a small degree of responsibility.

"The deal is closed," Joe Conway telephoned to me as soon as the final papers were signed. "The thought you planted in my mind has clicked in every way so far."

We'll be rooting for the Bees to show results under the new syndicate. It would be a good thing for sports in Boston if the Bees as well as the Red Sox could have clubs that would be in there fighting for the pennant.

Baseball is still the national pastime. Other sports have edged up on baseball, but the diamond game is still tops with millions of Americans. I think sports, and particularly baseball, occupy a more important place than ever in the life of a nation. With the world filled with so much grief, athletics furnish a normal, healthy outlet for people.

Random Shots at Target

CHARLES F. ADAMS and Bruce Wetmore will not have to pay any tax on the money they received for their Bees stock. . . This is due to the fact the transaction did not net them a capital gain. . . Adams and Wetmore showed considerable patience during the ups and downs of the old Braves and the Bees. . . They took financial losses without making a single public utterance. . . I think Adams and Wetmore are pleased they have been able to turn over their stock to a Boston syndicate which will keep Bob Quinn at the head. . . Quinn frequently stated that during the time he represented the Adams-Wetmore interest in the club that he at no time had any interference. . . He was permitted to handle the affairs of the club as if he had full control of all of the stock.

The Bees under John Quinn, Bob's son, have built up a strong farm system. . . If it is not too badly injured by the draft, the Bees will have plenty of replacements coming up. . . Branch Rickey, the Yanks and Sox have proved that if a ball club is going to get anywhere that it must have a powerful farm system.

Matchmaker "Rip" Valenti of the Goodwin A. C. is trying to talk Mike Jacobs into permitting a return Zivic-Kaplan bout for the title to come to this city. . . Jacobs and the Zivic forces believe that a title match between Fritzie and Kaplan would draw better in New York than it would here. While Kaplan wasn't much of a local card before his recent tussle with Zivic, his victory over the champion has established him as one of the world's best welterweights. . . Zivic would probably rule a favorite in a return bout which would be over the 15-round route. . . Zivic came with a rush during the last two sessions of his Garden go with Kaplan.

Talun Faces Morgan Tonight on Arena Mat

Nearer to the wrestling heights he is matched against an opponent than he ever has been in his meteoric career in this country, Wladyslaw Talun, 302 pound Pole, may be belted back to preliminary ranks tonight when he clashes with Ben Morgan, 320 pound Texan, in the main event at the Boston Arena.

It is the biggest bout Talun has ever had and if he wins it he definitely becomes number one challenger for the world's heavyweight title. But there is no certainty that he is going to win, not when like Morgan. Big Ben, largest man in the ring today, is likewise considered one of its toughest.

Talun announces that he is ready for anything Morgan may offer him tonight.

The combined weight of the men is 624 pounds, which makes it about the heaviest main event Boston wrestling has ever seen.

In the semi-final George Maciucostas, sensational, speedy Greek, clashes with Red O'Dell of Calicut.

nia; a special match will have Tiger Tawker, White vs. Pantaleon Maniag, champion of the Philippine Islands.

'JUICE JOINT' EXPLAINED TO 'FIX' JURY

LOS ANGELES, April 23 (INS)—A "juice joint," or bookmakers' commission exchange, was explained in the race fix trial here and added to the rapidly finishing picture of horse race gambling operations.

Castle Harris, manager of the Kingston Club, of San Francisco, under order and promised court immunity, described his place of business in San Francisco as a "betting commission's" club. Harris told the jury that Bernard "Mooney" Binatos, one of the defendants in the case, had frequently been a visitor to the club during 1933, 1934 and 1940.

Harris described the club as a room full of easy chairs, a loud speaker system and numerous telephones.

In explaining the operations of the club, Harris said he would take calls over the telephones from persons who wished to bet large sums of money. He would then announce their desires over the loud speakers and anyone in the room could "take a piece."

"I got 3 per cent commission on all losing bets that I took over the telephone," Harris said. This 3 per cent in gambling parlance is known as "juice."

In the midst of this testimony a recess was called until Thursday due to the defense being crippled with an attorney home ill with a cold.

Harvard Nine Plays Terriers

Harvard will face Boston University in the final game of the annual series between the two nines this afternoon at the Riverside diamond. Harvard won the opening encounter 2-1 in an 11-inning mound duel between Mort Waldstein and Bill DeMerritt, who held the Crimson to two safeties in the first game, for his hurling selection. Poor support by his teammates cost DeMerritt the first contest.

Coach Floyd Stahl will start Charlie Brackett, a senior, who displayed good form as a sophomore, but did not play last year because of scholastic trouble. In Brackett's only work on the mound this spring he split the hurling duties with Waldstein to register a 5-3 win over the University of Maryland.

Both coaches will stick to their regular lineups for the game with the possible exception that Bill Parsons will be in left field in place of Lou Clay, who has been in a batting slump lately.

Spreyer Quits Harvard Grid for Naval Reserve

Harvard football today had lost a star performer and "spark-plug" back, has not returned since spring vacation. He was reported as having taken a position with a Hartford aircraft company pending a call to duty with the naval reserve.

Spreyer is among several members of the Crimson football squad who have indication to enlist or are eligible for draft call.

DIMAGGIO TRIO GREATEST BROTHER ACT IN BASEBALL

CHICAGO, April 23 (INS)—Let us consider, today, the DiMaggio boys. Outfielders all, and eminently successful. Major league center fields are their natural habitat.

There may be someone who can say with a degree of accuracy which of the three, Joe or Dom, ranges farthest afield in pursuit of the flying baseball. We can't.

One DiMaggio ranging through the outfield operates much the same as another, and for effortless play we recommend all three, most heartily.

Baseball hasn't been a soft touch for any of these three, who came up from San Francisco.

Joe, the first to gain national attention, has had his problems, too. He was plagued in all his major league seasons save this with mishaps in spring training. He was hampered on occasions with ill luck that dogged him during the regular campaigning, after his sheer talent had enabled him to make up all the ground lost, for one reason or another, by his inevitable late spring starts.

STARTED FROM SCRATCH

All who are interested in baseball were anxious to see how Joe would go, if he ever began a season on schedule with full benefit of spring training. Well, take a look at the record today—the record made by Joe DiMaggio who started from scratch with all the other Yankees.

There is a quality of courage in all the DiMaggios.

Perhaps you have noticed it more in Vince, the sole National Leaguer in the trio. He was brought up from the Pacific Coast League largely because his name was DiMaggio, he was tried and found wanting by a variety of managers, sent back to the Class AA's, returned, and found wanting again.

Perhaps the several managers who had his services became discouraged. Vince DiMaggio didn't, and eventually he wound up with "Happy" Frisch of the Pirates. Some day, perhaps, we shall find out what "Happy" Frisch learned that was denied the several other major league managers. Right now we are concerned chiefly with the fact that he did find a way to make Vince DiMaggio click.

GLASSES SCARED SCOUTS

Last of the DiMaggios to reach the major leagues was Dominic. Dom, who appeared to be something of an artist in his own right while operating in the Coast League, wears glasses. That scared off a bevy of major league scouts, who have lived to regret it.

Dom is the small boy of the family. He is the lead-off man in the Boston Red Sox ensemble. He hasn't the power, it seems, of Joe or of Vince, who hit baseballs great distances.

But he has speed and he has batting talent of another sort. He yields to neither of his brothers in patrolling the outfield territory assigned to him—and some of the territory properly assigned to the left and right fielders. He ably rounds out the most remarkable trio of brothers that have set foot in major league territory.

EVERETT GUN EXPERT CHIEF RANGE OFFICER IN W. R. H. FINAL SHOOT

By WALTER KILEY

Captain Augustine P. "Pete" Lambert of Everett, one of the outstanding rifle and pistol authorities in the East, was today named as chief range officer of the William Randolph Hearst Citizens Marksmanship Championship finals.

A striking figure of a well-conditioned man, who has spent more than 30 of his 62 years actively engaged in shooting, Captain Lambert will direct the 15 sharpshooting teams which will be seeking the valuable Hearst Trophy in the finals to be held at the 101st Infantry Armory, East Newton st., on Sunday afternoon, May 4th.

In this veteran, the American-Record is fortunate in securing the most qualified expert in the New England area, a man who has instructed, trained and shot with the crack rifleman of the country, and who has acted as range officer at the highest shoots held in these parts.

Born in Boston's North End, "Pete" has been shooting since a kid throughout the hunting regions of South and North Dakota, Montana and Iowa where he was raised. Always a crack shot, he has hundreds of medals and trophies as mementoes of a full and colorful career.

OLDEST CLUB IN U. S.
There's little about the shooting fraternity he doesn't know. He's intimately acquainted with the leading shotmakers east of the Mississippi. He has watched the game grow by leaps and bounds and he is particularly impressed by the modern methods of training and instruction employed by the various police departments of New England.

Capt. Lambert is a three times former president of the famous Massachusetts Rifle Association and four times range officer, a position which he currently holds down.

He is proud of this association's distinction of being the oldest rifle club in the United States, incorporated as it was in 1875, a range located at Walnut Hill, Woburn, where world records of all sorts have been made and broken.

Lambert vividly recalls Annie Oakley shooting there, and Buffalo Bill Cody, the legendary Bennett Brothers, the noted Capt. Garrish and William E. Fennell, one of the greatest pistol shots of older days and now instructor of the Everett police.

TO ANNOUNCE AIDES
The captain is a member of almost every sportsman's club of the East. He is a life member of the National Rifle Association and a member of the U. S. Revolver Ass'n, Wilson Hill Pistol Club, N. H. New England Pistol Revolver League (and director), the Swampscott Pistol and Revolver Club, the Schutzen Ass'n of Ohio, the Northern Middlesex Police League and as many more.

He has been coach and instructor to Miss Dorothy Knight of Somerville, prominent woman pistol shot, and has instructed the Wakefield police for the past three years and the Charlestown Boys' Club for the past year.

As range officer he has directed the Eastern Rifle Ass'n championships and the annual shoot of the New England Pistol Revolver League held at Woburn.

Capt. Lambert will shortly announce the names of the assistant range officer and aides who will help him direct the monster Hearst championship finals.

Chapman Home To Make Peace With Draft Board

GREENWICH, Ct., April 23 (AP)—Richard D. (Dick) Chapman, the national amateur golf champion, came home today to make his peace with the Greenwich draft board feeling, he said, "like being two down and three to go for the match."

Denying he ever had called the board "hammer-headed," the 30-year-old golfer told reporters: "I want to do the right thing from now on. My only purpose is to co-operate in the future." Chapman, given a 1-A classification (available for immediate service), was granted a temporary deferment last week, the day before he was to have reported to the Hartford induction center, when the board was informed that he had become assistant athletic director at Maxwell Field, Montgomery, Ala., Southeast Air Corps training center.

GREMP TRIES BACKSTOPPING

Wedgeworth Clicks at Woodland

By BILL GRIMES

Until he was pressed into service after Phil Maai had been injured and Ray Berres retired in favor of a pinch hitter, Buddy Gremph had caught only one game in organized baseball. A year ago Buddy was sent behind the bat by Manager Rudy Hulsawit, who was his boss at York, Pa., when the Bees' farm in the Inter-State League ran out of receivers. Gremph is a real handy Andy, for he can give a very good account of himself at first, second or back of the plate.

Arthur Wedgeworth, who is filling in for Johnny Thoren at Woodland, is making a fine impression with the members of the Auburn Junior College. He started classes yesterday . . . and, starting on May 1, Arthur Wedgeworth will hold classes for the girl students of Newton High School. It will be group instruction.

Phil Friel, pro at the Woburn G. C., has a golf range on the Burlington-Lowell road . . . John Hanley has resigned as pro at the Longmeadow G. ## Feller Warns 'Pitch Stealers'

CLEVELAND, April 23 (AP)—Bob Feller warned American League pitch-stealers today to stop calling his throws or half their clubs "will be in the hospital."

The 22-year-old strikeout king made it plain he wouldn't toss any "bean balls"—but that the result might be serious if an opposing batter were looking for a curve and got a blazing fast ball which didn't "break" when it reached his head.

Rapid Robert's thoughts were focused particularly on the third base coaching boxes occupied by those astute baseball observers, Coach Mule Haas of Chicago and Manager Del Baker of Detroit.

Haas told the White Sox what to expect when they beat Feller on opening day, 4 to 3, and Baker frequently called them for the Tigers last season although Feller beat the Bengals Saturday, 2 to 1.

"I always knew they could tell what I was going to throw but they didn't try to call them until last year," Feller observed as he made ready to face the St. Louis Browns in his third 1941 start.

"I hold my fast ball a little differently than I do my curve, and I wasn't covering my hand up enough with my glove," he said. "I've changed that now, and while the position is a little unnatural I have just as much stuff."

"Haas did a pretty good job for a while opening day, but I was wild, too, and didn't have my stuff. Baker called them a lot last year, but he wasn't doing it Saturday. I had found the trouble by then."

Athletic's Rookie Handcuffs Yankees

NEW YORK, April 23 (INS)—Until yesterday we knew very little about Lester William McCrabb except that he was 26 years old, slender, right handed, came from Christiansa, Pa. (See larger maps) and had pitched with indifferent success for Toronto last year.

We might never have known more about the young man if old Connie Mack, made desperate by five straight kickings for his Athletics, hadn't chosen to unveil him against the Yanks.

Today we know a little more about McCrabb. We know he can make the Yanks moan as he did yesterday by trimming them, 6 to 5; we know he has the poise of an ambassador and the control of a Grover Alexander.

We also know that he is the first pitcher to handout Joe DiMaggio this year and that in itself entitles him to a world of respect from the cognoscenti.

JOE FINDS HIS MASTER

After hitting furiously in 21 straight games this spring, Joe finally found his master in the young man off whose tantalizing deliveries the pride of the Yanks couldn't get more than a loud foul.

McCrabb—and somehow that has the proper tag for a baseball name—held the Yanks to six hits, three of which were homers by Dickey, Henrich and Keller good for a five-run Yankee lead. However, this didn't seem to bother him at all, and after the A's tied it up for him against Chandler, he continued unperturbed until his mates beat Murphy in the ninth.

That was a neat job for a rookie. But an even better one was turned in by the veteran Bill Dietrich of the White Sox, who trimmed the Tigers with two hits, 6 to 3. Bill had a no-hit, no run game in hand until the ninth when an error, Greenberg's single and York's single and York's homer spoiled the day for him.

The Red Sox combined five errors with shoddy pitching to give the Senators a 12-5 decision over them. Cecil Travis, soon to be paged by Uncle Sam, continued his murderous hitting pace and the American League pitchers are going to breathe a sigh of relief when he joins the Army.

Eldon Auker, who had the Indian sign on the Indians five times last year, started in where he left off by trimming them for the Browns, 6-3. Al Milnar being the victim.

There were some noteworthy doings in the other league, too, where Johnny Vander Meer won a swell pitching duel from Bill Lee, 1-0. The Reds' star gave the Cubs only four hits and fanned an even dozen. Big Bill gave up only five hits, but two wild pitches in the sixth helped the Reds land their only run to beat him.

Dolph Camilli and Hugh Casey batted and pitched the Giants into a 14 defeat. The big Dodger first baseman drove in five of his team's runs with a homer and single.

PHILS LOSE STREAK

The Phillies finally broke a six-game losing streak at the expense of the Bees, 6-4, but they had to travel 14 innings to get the decision on Joe Marty's single.

The cards showed their fighting spirit by twice coming from behind to beat the Pirates in 12 heats, 9 to 8. The Cards put over three runs in the ninth to tie the score, then, after the Pirates had made a run in the first half of the 12th, the Redbirds came back with two to win.

Slap Dodgers On Service Tax

NEW YORK, April 23 (AP)—City council took cognizance today of the Brooklyn Dodgers' 50-cent service charge on passes—a matter of public concern in this big town ever since the baseball season opened.

Councilman John P. Nugent introduced an amendment to the city's administrative code providing that it shall be unlawful to charge more than 25 cents on a pass to an outdoor sports exhibition unless the ticket carries a rain check stub. A penalty of a $1000 fine or a year in prison, or both, was included.

The ball club was not mentioned specifically, but Councilman Louis Cohen, following its introduction, declared "and I hope they finish in eighth place."

Both the Yankees and Giants have a 25-cent charge on passes.

ADAMS AT HEAD

Charles F. Adams remained president of the Eastern Racing Ass'n, operators of Suffolk Downs horse race track, after the annual meeting of the board of directors.

Novikoff Needs Little "Hoopsa"

CHICAGO, April 23 (AP)—Mrs. Esther Novikoff has landed and the situation is well in hand. Arriving yesterday from California, the wife of the celebrated Chicago Cubs rookie explained why her husband hasn't been hitting in the National League.

"All you needs is a little hoopsa," she said. "That's a Russian dish something like a hamburger. It's rolled in cabbage and served on a bun. He'll begin to hit after he's had some of that."

miracle if they cross the wire any better than fourth.

It must be admitted, at the same time, that they are much more formidable than they shaped up in Florida.

They did look helpless during the greater part of their stay in Miami, but they weren't using the lineup they are now employing.

JURGES OLD SELF

Billy Juges, one of the better shortstops, wasn't shortstopping in the South. He was suffering from dizzy spells resulting from a severe "beating" which ended his 1940 career in mid-season. He was treated up during the exhibition season. He's been back at his post and dashing since the race started.

Then there is "Harry the Horse" Danning. He was a hold-out. When he finally reported, it was decided to try him as an outfielder, despite the fact that for the past season he was rated the best catcher in the league. As a fly-chaser he quickly convinced everybody that if he was kept on the job long enough, he'd qualify as the worst in baseball history. He's back catching now.

A few of the boys are hitting pretty well, Master Mel Ott, home run specialist, in particular.

Babe Young and Burgess Whitehead were satisfactory at first and second, respectively, last year and there has been no complaints about their work this spring. A third-base weakness seems to have been remedied by the acquisition of Joe Oringo from the Cards.

In the garden with Ott are the veteran Joe Moore, who is wearing remarkably well, and the speedy Johnny Rucker, who has profited greatly from a year's experience in the main tent.

There are better clubs, but the Giants are far from being the softest touch in the league.

Incidentally, you might say the same about our Bees.

But you couldn't say Casey Stengel is in his humor today.

Not after yesterday's happenings at the Hive.

Trailing St Johnson and the Phils, 4 to 0 going into the eighth, the Swarms, paced by Pitcher Jim Tobin, put over three runs. Then, with two gone in the ninth, they fashioned the tying tally, only to lose out, 6 to 4, in the 14th.

TOBIN SHOULD HAVE WON

Johnson, who fanned 14 during an 11-inning stint, yielded only two hits in the first seven stanzas.

Tobin, doubled to lead the eighth-inning rally which was climaxed by a Gene Moore triple. In the ninth, Buddy Hanes produced a pinch-hit single and scored all the way from first when Tobin again doubled.

But the Swarms couldn't score after filling the bases with one gone in the tenth, and Tobin weakened in the 14th.

Pitcher Tom Hughes, who had gone to the hostile hill in the 12th, singled to open the fatal frame. Singles by Merrill May and Joe Marx brought him home and two walks forced over the sixth run.

With perfect support, though, Tobin would have won in nine frames. Two of the first four Phils' runs were scored by him. So Stengel promised to be very mad this afternoon if Dick Erickson et al didn't make the Terrible Terry man and his pitching choice, Bob Bowman, exceedingly mad.

Speed Alone Won't Make a Base-Stealer

throw to first, and the base-runner doesn't have to slide back, I say that base-runner is looking for When he doesn't slide, it means he's a foot or two short of the lead he should have.

"It's the same way running bases. Take a batter who singles to right. How many do you see loaf down to first? They know it's a single, and they're content with that. Not me.

"I was at top speed all the time, and if that outfielder bobbled the ball for a second, I was off for that extra base. And I beat him nine times out of ten.

"Cobb did that to me once. I bobbled the ball, recovered quickly. When I looked up Cobb was tearing down. And he beat the throw. That burned me, so I said to myself: 'I'll fix you, Mr. Tyra.' And I did.

"When he singled to me again, I'd pretend to bobble it, and throw to second without looking up at all. I knew he'd be going down and I'd nail him. But he used to pull it on me, too. It was fun, though, and everybody had his head up at all times."

Milan tossed his cigarette on the floor and prepared to return to the diamond.

"I had a motto when I was playing ball: 'Never be content on any base except home,' and I lived up to it.

"When I doubled to right, I'd cross second at top speed if the play wasn't close. I could glance over my shoulder to right without breaking my stride.

"I'd go just far enough over the bag so I could get back. But if anything happened; if the throw wasn't perfect, if the ball was fumbled for even a second, I was off for third. I'd do the same on triples. I was always watching the catcher, too. If he went down on his knees for a low pitch, I was off. And he wouldn't catch me either.

"But how many fellows do you see running bases like that today? I'll tell you, Case, your Don DiMaggio and Barney McKeay.

"If baseball were played today as it was before the War, there would be the base-stealing triumvirate Cobb and Collins and myself were. They're not getting the chance to run because one run seldom means the ball game any more.

"Our Case," Milan concluded, "is the fastest ball player I've ever seen. There is only one man I can remember who possibly could equal him in a straight away dash. He was 'Bullet Jack' Thoney of the old Red Sox. Remember him?"

No, but the old boys in Barsanti's will. We'll find out about him later.
